VOL. 52 CAMERON, MILAM COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1931 TEN PAGES TODAY No. 51

DRASTIC LAW ENACTED ON USED CAR SALES

Under the new law motor vehicle owners in Milam County will save approximately $1000 per year in Transfer Fees. This provided the law is complied with in making sales, trades and exchanges of motor vehicles. The Transfer fee under the old law was $1.00 and the fee provided under the new law is 25c. If the law is not followed the penalties provided are very heavy. The essential provisions provided under the new law are set out in another section ofthis paper.

It is very important that our people acquaint themselves with the provisions of the new tansfer law. As Tax Collector of our county trying to serve all citizens fairly, efficiently, courteously and at the same time assist them in observing the laws as provided by the law-making body of our government I realize the confusion which will prevail until our people thoroughly acquaint themselves with this law. I respectfully request and urge everyone to give special notice and consideration to this law to the end that all our neighbors and friends may come to understand same.

The reason given for enactment of this bill by the legislature at this time is, the fact that many automobiles have been stolen and the failure to file for transfer timely, results in confusion, and the inability in many instances, to trace the thieves and determine ownership; ambiguity of the present law; and the excessiveness of the filing fee under the present law.

HEALTH OFFICERS HERE FOR DAYS PROGRAM OF WORK

Message of Better Living Brought to City On Tuesday

Better public health through the application of more sanitary methods in handling the milk supply and the water supply, together with suggestions for extending the benefits of public sanitation, were stressed in the program here Tuesday in which Dr. J. C. Anderson, state health officer and others took part.

The occasion of the visit was Texas Health and Milk Week. The significant result of the visit was the enactment on Tuesday night by the City Council of the Standard Milk Ordinance, under consideration here for several years and sponsored by Dr. G. E. Sutton, city sanitary officer.

This ordinance, a lengthy law governing the public supply of milk, will be pubished in the next week's issue of The Herald.

Those in the party of health authorities who visited Cameron were Dr. J. C. Anderson, V. M. Ehlers, state sanitary engineer, and Dr. Ernest LeMay of the state health department.

As guests of the Lions Club on Tuesday the officials brought a message of better health to that organization. In the evening they met with the Business and Professional Women. During the afternoon they were guests of the Parent Teachers Association in talks to the student bodies of the schools in Cameron

Mr. Ehlers formerly lived in Cameron and is well known here.

Dairymen coopeating offered prizes for the best posters. The winners will be announced and published next week.

COTTON CO-OPERATIVE MEETING HELD HERE

DELEGATES NAMED FOR MEETING AT COOLIDGE ON APRIL 11

The Texas Cotton Cooperative Association of Milam County met in the District Court Room of the Court House at Cameron, Saturday afternoon, April 6, 1931.

The following officers were elected for the purpose of this meeting: J. D. Baskin, chairman; H. E. Fuchs, vice chairman and Roy Law, secretary.

Purposes of the meeting were explained by Chairman Baskin who requested further discussion of the association business by members present. Good talks were delivered by T. S. Henderson of Cameron, H. B McAnnulty of Buckholts and H. L. Yager of Maysfield.

Election of delegates to the district meeting of the association to be held in Coolidge, Texas, Saturday, April 11, was called for the the chairman declared nominations in order. Mr. H. L. Atkinson of Maysfield nominated the following list of delegates all of whom were unaminously elected. T. S. Henderson of Cameron; H. L. Yager of Maysfield; G. A. McDermott of Marlow; E. G. Simms of Rockdale, Judd G. Davis of Sharp; H. H. Camp of San Gabriel; John Stasa of Curry; W. B. Smith of Gause; P. L. Bergum of Ben Arnold and H. E. Fuchs of Buckholts.

Waymie Mae Worcester Injured By Automobile

Waymie Mae Worcester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buck Worcester was painfully injured at noon Thursday when struck by a passing automobile. She was on her way to school.

An ambulance from the Coleman-Eplen firm responded to the call and she was taken to the hospital. Her legs were badly cut and bruised and a cut was made on the face by the car fender. She was not fatally injured and will recover in a few days it was said.

MAN AND HIS DOG

Famed Tribute of Senator Vest to Jury Expresses Love of Dog for His Master.

Below is a 'Tribute To The Dog,' which is a speech made by the late Senator Vest of Missouri in the trial of a man who had wantonly shot a dog belonging to a neighbor. Mr. Vest represented the plaintiff, who demanded $200 damages. As the result of this speech, the jury, after two minutes' deliberation, awarded the plaintiff $500.

'Gentlemen of the Jury: The best friend a man has in this world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name, may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may loose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it the most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend that a man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, and the one that never proves ungrateful or treacheous, is his dog.

'Gentlemen of the Jury, a man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground, where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer, he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounters with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert, he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is as constant in his love as the sun in its jouney through the heavens. If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies, and when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace, and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by his graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even unto death.'

Mrs. T. A. Howell has returned from a few days visit with her son and family in Waco.

GILLIS DELIVERS ADDRESS AT MEET OF TEXAS WOODMEN

Convention Hears Cameron Man In Inspiring Address

W. G. Gillis and T. A. Howell returned last Saturday from Mineral Wells where they attended on Friday and Saturday the Woodmen of the World Head Camp as representatives of Pecan Camp No. 237, the local Woodman Lodge.

They report an interesting and well attended meeting of Texas Woodmen. The session of the Head Camp were presided over by Head Consul, R. H McDill of Dallas.

The national organization was represented by its President, W. A. Fraser; its banker, Senator Morris Sheppard and its General Attorney, D. E. Bradshaw. These national officers made eloquent and instructive addresses, reviewing the growth and achievements of the order.

Judge Gillis was invited to address the convention. His address delivered in characteristic eloquence and forceful speech, was one of the big moments of the convention. Great enthusiasm prevailed as Judge Gillis concluded his address. The convention members rose to their feet and gave Judge Gillis a vote of thanks for the address and their appreciation was expressed in many ways for the inspiration of his remarks. It was one of those rare occasions in convention assemblies when words found their way to the hearts of the hundreds who listened with rapt attention to the Cameron speaker.

It was developed that the order now had over $105,000,000 invested a first class County and Municipal securities; that the interest on this investment was sufficient last year to pay 60 per cent of the death losses; that over $8,000,000 were invested in bonds for the reserve fund during the past year.

The report on the War Memorial Hospital at San Antonio owned and operated by the Woodmen excited much interest and comment. This institution is caring for an average of 150 men per day per year. It is endowed with a permanent fund of $2,000,000, the income from this fund being sufficient to support the institution. The hospital has its own herd of registered Jersey cattle from which it gets butter and milk of the finest quality for the patients. Flocks of chickens belonging to the hospital furnish an abundant supply of eggs and meat.

The order, numerically and financially, is in a most flourishing condition according to Messrs. Howell and Gillis.

Come to the meeting Tuesday night April 28 and hear our Consul Commander, W. G. Gillis, make his report and don't forget to boost the WOW.

T. A. HOWELL, Financial Sec.

First Day Out Nets Dog Bite; Bull Pup Doesn't Like Wagon

Chas. Nabours, newly appointed employee at the Federal building and in charge of the free parcel post delivery service, found that his first day out on April 1, netted many thrills, including a good dog bite.

A courageous bull pup owned by Wyatt Wolf did not like the looks of the wagon and took out his resentment on Charlie's ankle. 'No doubt the dog thought I was the dog catcher,' said Mr. Nabours. 'At any rate he made a terrible mistake. I was only delivering a package but the presence of that wagon was more than the dog could stand.'

Mr. Nabours finds the work very satisfactory and the people here greatly appreciate his being placed in charge of the work because of his uniform courtesy and many friends in Cameron. They trust he will be placed permanently in charge of the work.

MEETING AT CURRY SCHOOL

Next Sunday at 2:30 p. m. Rev. C. A. Lehmberg, will attend the Sunday school at Curry school and preach immediately after. The community is invited to attend.

Scarbrough Mayfield of Austin was an Easter guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mayfield.

Says Song Strengthens International Harmony

If only on American will hurry and write a song as characteristically Yankee as 'King's Horses' is characteristically British, there will be no need to worry about harmony between at least two nations of the world.

This is the conviction of Ben Bernit, famous orchestra leader, whose rendition of 'King's Horses,' both on the record and in person, has proved one of the hits of the Manhattan season—indeed, a 'natural,' as it is called on Broadway.

Bernie spent some time in London as an attraction of the Kit Kat Club and it is due to his knowledge of England, gained then, that he is able to make a typically English song intelligible and interesting to America The song, incidentally, is written in American fox trot tempo.

'What the world needs is fewer long-winded diplomatic notes and more exchange of the lively arts,' Bernie declares.

'People who are singing each other's songs, understanding each other's jokes and laughing when the other fellow pokes gentle fun have little to fear in the way of international disagreements.

'Nations, after all, are made up of individuals and therefore, when nations quarrel, it means simply that individuals in the mass have found themselves unable to agree.

'Yet why shouldn't they agree if they have common interests? Seems to me it is the patriotic duty of some American to send England as good a laugh song as 'King's Horses.' We have had nothing like it since Blanch Ring did 'Bells on My Fingers.

Postal Clerks Here Make Good Showing

Commended For Excellent Work By Chief Clerk Vawter of Fort Worth.

Of interest to patrons of the Cameron postoffice and their friends are the results of examinations held this week under the direction of F. B. Vawter of Fort Worth, chief clerk in the postal service there.

The examinations were held Wednesday April 7 with clerks, Albert Collins, Grady Cooper and Joe Matula taking the tests. In all six examinations were held, two in each phase of the work. There was one for dispatch and another for case and junction work in distributing mail

Mr. Collins made 100 in both examinations for case and junction work. Mr. Cooper made 100 in these examinations and Mr. Matula made 100 in the junction examinations and 99:70 in the case work.

Mr. Vawter complimented the local office on its efficiency in dispatching the mails, the comment being based on reports of the Railway Postal Clerks who handle the mails aboard the trains from this office.

The entire personnel of the Federal building in Cameron is a credit to Cameron and the results of this examination will be received with interest by the hundreds of satisfied patrons of this post office.

Motion For New Trial Overruled By Judge

Motion for a new trial in the case of H. D. Thompson convicted and given a 20 year sentence for murder, was overruled by Judge John Watson in district court this week.

Attorneys for defendant gave notice of appeal to the court of criminal appeals.

REV. J. T. SAILES DEAD AT HOUSTON HOME

FORMER PASTOR HERE DIES AT 91 YEARS OF AGE FRIDAY

Rev. J. T. Hailes, 91, Presbyterian minister for fifty years,and a former pastor of Cameron Presbyterian church, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mamie Booth, 1756 Branard Street, Houston, at 4 p. m., Friday. He had been living with his daughter in Houston for the past 18 months.

Rev. Sailes was an evangelist with the American Sunday School Union and is said to have organized the first Sunday school in Northern Louisiana. He was born in Belfast, Ireland, January 17, 1840 and was a member of the Masonic Lodge.

Deceased is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Booth of Houston and Mrs. Robert Hill of Tyler, nine grandchildren and nine great grand children. The body was sent to Monroe, La., Saturday where services were held and laid to rest.

Mr. Sailes was pastor of the Presbyterian church here for about two years. He was very popular with all classes and his long and useful life will be remembered by many friends in Cameron.

COURT HOUSE YARD IS BEAUTY SPOT

"The Flowers With Their Color Are Aflame," Like Springtime in the Rockies.

To mention the many beautiful flower yards to be seen in Cameron now, would require too much detail. One of the show places i s the flower yard that surrounds the Court House which is kept up and looked after by the County officials.

The East side is particularly attractive where roses, lilies, bluebonnets, petunias, larkspur and red poppies may be seen in full bloom. There is something in bloom there most all the year and the grassy lawn affords cool places where many of the old pioneer men gather to swap yarns of earlier days when either side of the yard were deep sand beds.

Cameron has indeed grown to be a city where flowers, genial hospitality and culture has won the name of 'Cameron, the Friendly City.'

WACO BUSINESS MEN

Cameron business men were hosts Wednesday afternoon to business men from Waco on their annual pilgrimage over the territoy.

Buiness women of Cameon pinned flowers on the visiting delegates and flags were waving from their staffs on order of the Commercial Club.

Members of the Lions Club joined in the welcome to the business men

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Garner left Tuesday for Waco where they are attending the School of Instruction of Order Eastern Star that is being held in that city this week.

WORLD WAR VETERAN IS KILLED WHEN CAR WRECKS

Charlie Hicks Instantly Killed Saturday Night

Another World War veteran has answered to last roll call. Charlie Hicks, age 35 years, was instantly killed when he lost control of the car he was driving about eight miles this side of Brenham Saturday night. A man who was riding with him was not injured. Mr. Hicks was on his way to Cameron to visit his mother, Mrs. Lizzie Hicks, where his remains were taken.

Deceased was born November, 1895 near Rosebud and had lived in Milam county most of his life, moving to Brenham a short time ago.

Mr. Hicks was a member of the Ninetieth Division and saw oversea service. He was a man well liked and many friends will mourn his sudden death.

The funeral was held at Ben Arnold Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by Rev. N. D. Timmerman, pastor of the First Baptist church, Cameron. He was buried with military honors by the American Legion. Taps were sounded and a salute of guns over the flag draped casket. Interment was made in the Ben Arnold cemetery.

Deceased is survived by his widow, a small daughter, widowed mother and two sisters: Mrs. Mabel Hair of Cameron and Mrs. Ella Lawrence of Granger.

C. N. Green & Brothers, undertakers had charge of the remains after being brought to Cameron.

Legion Meets Tuesday Declines Official Aid To Road Bonds

Edwin Hardy Post No. 9 American Legion held a jubilee meeting on Tuesday night with a large attendance.

The men were celebrating the payment of the bonus, Commander Hoover is meeting with much success as commander and with his capable official aides in the post, the post is making much pogress.

T. S. Henderson appeared before the meeting to discuss the proposed road bond issue for the state. The post declined to take official action in the matter, holding it not in keeping with the policy of the post to deal with matters involving political issues.

Mr. Henderson also brought the proposed bond issue to the attention of the Commercial Club but no action was taken by that body.

The state senate's vote on Wednesday submitting the issue has brought the bond plan to the foreground again. It was a contested issue in the late campaign, espoused by Governor Sterling who defeated Mrs. Ferguson.

Leland Green, who is a student at S. M. U. spent Easter here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Green.

'Start Farm Relief Yourself'

Better Cotton Seed Makes Better Staple and Better Prices, a Real Need of Cotton Farmers.

If some big manufacturer was to announce that he was planning on building a string of factories thruout the Southwest and that these factories would add tens of millions of dollars to the Southwest's yearly income, that news would be received with rejoicing. Think of it—25—50—75 million dollars extra put into the pockets of people in the Southwest We'd all like that, Wouldn't we?

Now, here's something I want you to remember—We can add millions of dollars—tens of millions—to the yearly income of this great section, by ourselves, without the help of manufacturers or factories. We can do this if our farmers and eveyone inteested in the cotton industry in the Southwest will get behind a unified program of cotton staple and quality improvement. We can start this year and in two or three years add a hundred million dollars to the value of our cotton, money that will go to the farmer.

You know as well as I do how badly we need a cotton improvement program in the Southwest. This section has lost its world-wide reputation as producer of the world's finest cotton. We have let the staple and quality of our cotton decline year by year. We've been planting just any old seed, good and bad. Last year, 26 per cent of our crop in Texas was of less than seven-eights of an inch in staple. Our staple grows shorter year by year. Our fiber is not the strong, tough fibre that brought buyers to us from all over the world—it has grown weaker.

There is just one way to change this situation, and that is to plant the highest type foundation cotton seed available and replant from it from year to year. You must plant good seed if you want to raise good cotton. And you must raise good cotton if you want to sell it at at a premium price. You know yourself that a scrub dairy cow will not sell far as much as a pedigreed cow. Scrub cotton won't bring as high a price as fine quality cotton, either.

Gause

Magnificent pre-Easter weather has told us that a glorious Spring is here and here to stay. At no better time could come the great festival of new life and new hope.

Special programs in observance of Easter were featured Sunday. First, the beautiful study of the Resurrection was made in the Sunday schools. Preaching services were held at the Methodist church consisting of a short Easter program of songs and readings followed by an Easter sermon by pastor, Rev. Burke. The Epworth League gave an Easter program at the church hour in the evening.

A number of Easter Egg Hunts were staged during the day. Mrs L. S. Cunningham and Mrs. Glen Critchfield gave their Sunday school classes a little hunt immediately after Sunday school on Mrs. Cunningham's lawn. In the afternoon Mrs. D. W. Key, Mrs. George Kendell and Mrs. B. T. Godfrey gave the junior and intermediate B. Y. P. U. a hunt at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Kilpatrick. A hunt was staged for the Methodist Sunday school on the school campus.

Mrs. J. F. Cook entertained her pupils, the primary and first grade, at noon Friday with a little picnic lunch and later a little Easter Egg hunt.

Miss Edrie Wilson and pupils, the second and third grades, went to Sand Banks Friday afternoon and enjoyed an Easter Egg hunt and like through woods, up streams and playing in the sand.

A P. T. A. program was featured Friday night—not the dry, business type, but a real entertainment. The program was lengthy consisting of talks by Mrs. L. O. Bowling and Mrs. Ditto; readings by Cecil Cook and Gertrude Luce; dialogues by second, seventh and eighth grades; songs; and an introducing of pupils who placed at County Meet and the senior class.

Preparations and rehearsals for the senior class play, 'An old Fashioned Mother,' which will be staged Friday night, May 1, are being made.

The school trustee election was held very quietly Saturday. Those elected were George Bland, F. D. Fowler, L. G. Hafley and L. S. Cunningham. Only 26 votes were cast.

A party for the Junior Sunday school class was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Wilson Saturday night. Eighteen little folks were out to enjoy the evening in spite of the cold. All had a very nice time. Visitors were Mrs. Ben Cass and daughter, Edith, Mrs. Terry Moore, Mrs. A. Varner and Mrs. Charlie Butler, The refreshments consisted of hot chocolate, cakes and Easter candies.

The Sewing Club met with Mrs D. W. Key Wednesday afternoon and surprised Mrs. Cannon with a love shower consisting of a little bit of everything—eats, and dry goods. The ladies decided to call their little group 'The Sunshine Club.'

Friends were grieved to hear Friday morning of the sudden death of the husband of Mrs. McNett, formerly Miss Charlie B. Fowler, granddaughter of Mrs. A. R. J. Ealand. Mr. McNett was killed when he fell from the top of an oil derrick on which he had begun working on recently. Mrs. Ealand left Friday to join the bereaved in San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Gaston spent the week end here while enroute to their new home near Corpus Christi.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilson and two sons of San Antonio and Mrs. Frank Ivy and two daughters of San Marcos and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Blackman of Thrall visited mother, Mrs. Zoe Todd.

Miss Mary M. Thomas who is in school at C. I. A., Denton, spent the week end at her home here.

Mrs. Gladys Tidwell and daughter, Helen June of Austin visited parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Partridge and Mrs. Lizzie Tidwell Sunday.

We were glad to have Miss Sue Sanders back in school Monday after a month's absence because of her mother's falling and breaking both arms a month ago. Miss Sanders reported her mother slowly improving but suffering a great deal yet.

Mr. and Mrs. Brice McClellen and little daughter of Cameron visited relatives here Sunday.

Miss Blanche Rose left Monday evening to assume a job at College Station after having spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Vernon Roper.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fowler and son of Georgetown visited Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Fowler.

Mrs. J. A. Smith and two little daughters and Mrs. Dorothy Broussard, of Cameron visited Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Smith.

Bull Rains of Goosecreek is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rains.

Miss Helen Hauptfleisch, who is teaching at Wheelock and Miss Elsie Hauptfleisch who is teaching at Milano spent the week end at their home here.

Every new Ford is equipped with four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers

ONE of the fine things about driving the new Ford is the way it takes you over the miles without strain or fatigue. No matter how long the trip, you know it will bring you safely, quickly, comfortably to the journey's end.

The seats are generously wide, deeply cushioned and carefully designed to conform to the curves of the body. Every new Ford has specially designed springs and four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. These work both ways — up and down. They absorb the force of road shocks and also provide a cushion against the rebound of the springs.

Other features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, extensive use of fine steel forgings, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, Rustless Steel and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

In addition, you save many dollars because of the low first cost of the new Ford, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

Story for Screen Play Featuring Ronald Coleman and Loretta Young Coming to Milam Theatre April 26 and 27.

CHAPTER TWO

They joined the long procession of donkey carts, motorcycles, and innumerable motor cars, all the way from little bath tub Austins to huge purring Hispanos, which choked the roads to Epsom Downs. All London was going to the Derby, the great event of the year when royalty and slum dwellers make holiday together. It was a long trip, for they had to creep at a foot pace, and from the moment they left Lord Leeland's door Willie never took his eyes from Dorothy's face. Susan, tucked in between them, might not have existed for all he was aware of her presence. She drove well, did Dorothy; she talked well, she looked amazingly well, and Willie felt a famiiar feeling coming on. Before ten minutes had passed he was cursing this arch-duke fiance with all the vocabulary his wide experiences had taught him—silently of course, but no less heartily on that account.

As soon as they had left the car at the race course, he turned to Susan and thrust bank notes into her hands.

'Just for luck, Sue,' he told her, 'you go and lay the bets. If I have anything to do with it, we'llcome a cropper. Horses with short heads have been the ruin of me nine times by actual count'

Susan shook her head warningly, but went as she was ordered. As soon as she had disappeared in the crowd, Willie took Dorothy's willing hand and whisked her off toward the side shows and carrousels which were filling the air witmh tinny music and the shouts of their respective barkers. He was going to squeeze every ounce of merriment out of the occasion. He was even more convinced that it was good to be back in England—and on Derby Day.

They rode the carrousels side by side, he on a giraffe, she on a huge and glistening white pig; and they sang uproariously as the barrel organ ground out its jiggly tunes. They rode the razzle-dazzle and the shoot the chutes, not once but several times and they threw balls at Aunt Sallies and darts at targets and quoits at pegs until their arms were loaded with prizes. They completely forgot about Susan until they got back to the luncheon basket they had picked up at a booth near the entrance and found her gloomily laying out its separate ingredients on a table cloth.

'You're a couple of mean brutes to leave me alone all this time,' she grumbled at them. 'I've been looking for you everywhere.'

'We've been keeping the coin of the realm in circulation, darling,' said Willie, 'It's the duty of the rich to spend money. And speaking of being rich, did you put our mutual shirt up on Laguna?'

'I did,' said Susan, 'at fifty to one. The bookmaker said it was a shame to take the money.'

'It's going to cut me to the heart to take his when it's all over,' said Willie, 'But I'll do it. I owe it to myself. Fifty times fifty—my lambs I'll be endowed with twenty-five hundred quid at that point in my history.'

Dorothy was looking round her in ecstacy at the spectacle of the wrong side of the race course which, being a proper young woman she had naturally never seen. Here was London having a day in the open with British thoroughness—consuming amazing luncheons out of paper bags, passing loud pleasantries from family group to family group, betting its shillings with far more zest than its social superiors were laying their hundreds of pounds. Far across the green infield was the looming grandstand filled with people that had money.

'Aren't they lovely people?' asked Willie in delight.

'They are,' he said, passing her a pair of binoculars. 'Have a look at the toffs across the way and see the contrast.'

She swept the grandstand with her glasses and centered them on the lower tier of boxes.

'There's father in the box,' she said, 'and Paul—and they look so bored, poor things.'

'Serves them right for being snobs, said Willie, reaching for the glasses, 'Is Paul the feller on the left?'

'That's right,' said Dorothy, 'He would be furious, wouldn't he, Sue?'

'Good looking,' Willie remarked without relish.

'Awfully,' said Dorothy.

Willie lowered the glasses.

'When we part tonight,' he said, 'I'm going to break a precedent and pop into the first church I come to.'

'And why?'

'To pray for your happiness,' said Willie, dashing away an imaginary tear. He almost meant it. He did not like the archduke Paul's looks; but he also told himself not to be a prejudiced ass. After all, a man had a right to be good looking and smooth even too smoth.

A roar from both sides announced that the race had started. Willie threw down his sandwich and got tremendously to his feet. Not till the first turn could he make much of the closely bunched field. And when he could make out something, it was not encouraging.

'My poor old feller's a long way behind,' he announced, and Susan nodded resignedly. The crowd was shouting for the favorite which was half a length in the lead.

'But he's holding his own—by Jove he's doing more than that—'Willie was dancing perilously among the luncheon dishes, leaving large footprints on the table cloth—'what a jockey that man is! He's fourth—he's fourth and ciming up—he's neck and neck with third—he's a grand old feller, God bless him. He's second—he's second—' Dorothy had jumped up beside him and was clutching him by the shoulder as he danced. 'He's going away! He's taking the favorite. Neck and neck.' He handed the glasses to Dorothy and knelt on the tablecloth to pray. 'I can't bear it,' he said, 'You tell me what the numbers are.'

Dorothy's hands were shaking, but she finally got the glasses focussed on the judges' stand. The crowd was not pleased. There was a growing murmur of consternation among them.

'Eleven—nine—' she began, but got no farther.

'He's won!' Willie howled, He's won, Laguna's won. Twenty five hundred quid, oh, my soul.' He grabbed both the girls by the arms and led them round and round in a wild war dance. 'Laguna's gone and gathered same May,' he sang, and first Dorothy and then Susan joined in lustily:

'Laguna's gone and gathered some
May,
'Laguna's gone and gathered some
May,
And we won't be home for mornings.'

'I must kiss somebody,' Willie shouted, 'Susan, my beloved, you're for it.'

He kissed her riotously.

'Five hundred apiece in the morning my darlings,' he said, 'Let this be a lesson to you. When in trouble, come to Willie. The long shot comes home. I'm a seventh son of a seventh son and the terror of the bookmakers.'

We'd better pack up the basket, said Susan practically.

But Willie hailed a shabby looking individual who was passing deep in gloom. He had evidently backed the favorite.

'Do something for me, old feller?' said Willie, 'Keep your eye on this basket and the food till I come to the Derby next year, eh?' He handed him a bank note from the remains of the hundred. 'Have a drink if you get bored—have two drinks.' He clutched Dorothy and Susan round the waist and an them off toward the car, still lustily singing 'Laguna's bone and gathered some May.' The man stared at the note, rubbed his eyes and spat on the ground.

'Fairly up the pole, he is,' he remarked, 'Bloomin' haristocrat.'

The jubilant party of three in Dorothy's little oadster did not notice when a huge shiny touring car drew in behind them as they joined the homeward procession. They were behaving much too riotously to notice anything. They kept up the song all the way to London, and Susan drove, while Willie and Dorothy put the wooden dolls they had won in the side shows through a series of jubiant antics which kept their neighbors on either side in constant fit of admiration.

But in the huge car behind their behavior did not meet with approval. It contained that eminent linoleum millionaire, Erward Hope, father of Miss Dorothy Hope, and the archduke Paul, whose engagement to Miss Hope was to be announced that evening at the Hope's ball. They noticed Doothy at about the same time, and looked at each other in blank amazement. Then their faces assumed the same expression of exasperated anger, and they did not look at one another again. Their eyes remained steadily fixed on the unconscious back of Dorothy's blonde head.

The Hope ball was lavish and expensive, as befitted the Hope wealth. People said obvious things tbout linoleum, but they came to the Hope house whenever invited, for the food and music were sure to be excellent. At about tn o'clock, the splendor of the accasion was added to by the arrival of The Honorable William Hale with his sister, The Honorable Susan Hale; and three minutes after that, The Honorable William Hale was earnestly dancing with Miss Dorothy Hope.

This fact was commented on by the Archduke Paul and Mr. Edward Hope who were standing together on the side lines.

'There she is with him,' said the Archduke savagely.

'My lecture didn't do any good at all,' said Mr. Hope, 'I knew it would not. Outrageous behavior—outrageous—and she seems to have no sense at all of what it was.'

'My word, you dance beautifully, Willie was saying at that moment.

'One has to dance well to dance with you,' said Dorothy sweetly.

Willie glanced at her in alarm.

'I say, am I so very bad?'

'Awful,' said Dorothy cheerfully, 'besides, Id much rather sit down for a moment and talk to you. Yes?'

'Perfect tact,' Willie agreed, and they left the dance floor, Dorothy hanging closely on his arm, a detail which the archduke and his prospective father in law did not miss.

'You know,' said Dorothy, when they were established in a quiet corner of the conservatory, 'they caught us.'

'Who are they?' asked Willie languidly.

'Paul and my father. They were right behind us all the way home. They are furious.'

'Can't blame them much,' said Willie. 'Are you reproaching me with leading you astray? I wish you would. I want to do some reproaching on my own account.'

'For what?'

'You might have waited to get engaged till I'd gone away again.'

,'Why?' Dorothy tried her best to look puzzled.

'Because we can't go to any more races. No more razzle-dazzle—no on the green. I say, it's thoughtless more Aunt Sally—no more dancing of you.'

Dorothy grinned at him mockingly.

'There's always Liverpool for a playmate,' she said, 'Does she like dancing on the green?'

'I've never asked her,' said Willie imperturbably, 'But I don't think she would.'

'Teach her then.'

'You can't teach people things like that,' he protested, 'It's a natural gift—like being double jointed.'

'I do adore things like that,' Dorothy relented a bit

'You do,' said Willie, 'you and I are both tramps, you know. I've found you out—and as for me, just ask my father.'

At this point Mr. Hope and the archduke decided that the best thing to do was for he archduke to hunt her down and take her back to her duties. But she was not to be found immediately, and the dangerous conversation went on.

'When are you going away again?'

'Well, if I can get the governor to stump up for a sheep ranch in New Zealand—'

'Sheep? Why sheep?'

'I don't sleep well,' said Willie owlishly, 'and I'll be able to count them jumping fences. I say—I wonder what sheep do when they can't sleep?'

But that problem in natural history was never settled. A long shadow fell across them and the archduke Paul's heavy voice remarked:

'Dorothy, People are looking for you everywhere. I must say you're behaving strangely for a hostess.'

Willie came to his feet as if he had been shot.

'I'm terribly sorry,' he babbled, 'It's entirely my fault. Iv'e always been badly bred, you know—you're perfectly right—'

'I wasn't talking to you,' said the archduke coldly. And Willie made a clumsy bow and went away. The archduke firmly took Dorothy in the other direction. Willie looked after them blankly.

'Hello, said a man's voice at his elbow, 'See her face? What's up?'

'Just a lover's tiff,' said a second voice, 'But if I thought she'd begun to see through that fortune-hunting tailors rummy, I'd drink her father's fizz till you had to cary me home.'

'No such luck,' said the fist voice, 'It's too late now.'

In the drawing room downstairs, Dorothy and the archduke were confronting each other, both of them in a blazing rage.

'You'll apologize to Mr. Hale, Paul,' said Dorothy between set teeth.

'That cad.' The archduke snorted in derision. 'I've had enough of him today.'

'How dare you call a man a cad you don't even know—'

'I'm saying what everyone says who knows him. And besides what sort of a man is it who behaves the way he has? He's made me look a fool twice today. That's enough.'

Dorothy laughed at him.

'It was I who took him into the conservatory.'

'So he could make love to you, I suppose? He has been making love to you, hasn't he?'

Dorothy's head went back and her eyes blazed directly into his.

'On the contrary,' she said evenly, 'He's one of the very few men I've ever met who didn't.' She began to fumble at her left hand. The archduke looked down at it in dumb amezement.

'Take this,' she told him, handing him a ring, 'You and I will never get along.'

The archduke saw he had gone too far, and began to plead. A vision of his debts rose sinister and grim before him.

'My dear,' he said gently, 'You're angry now. You'll think differently directly, you know. Don't do anything so stupid. Don't you know your father's going to announce the engagement in a few minutes?'

'If he does,' said Dorothy, 'you're going to look a fool for the third time today. You'd better stop him, Paul. That's the last bit of advice you'll ever get from me.' And she turned and left him standing in the middle of the room, his jaw dropped in amazement.

Willie and Susan sitting in the lounge, saw the archduke on his way to confer with Mr. Hope.

'The happy man doesn't look so happy, Sue,' said Willie.

Something must have happened,' said Susan, laying a hand excitedly on his arm, 'I wish it would.' Do you know what it's about?'

'Well, I have a vague notion,' said Willie.

'You haven't been making love to her?'

'Of course not,' Willie was indignant, 'I never met the girl until this morning.'

'he likes you a lot,' said Susan thoughtfully, 'I wish you'd take her away from him.'

'Even if I wanted to, Susan darling—and if I could—which I can't—I wouldn't.'

'For one thing she's too nice—and for another, she's too rich,' he told her. 'Look here, I've got to run.' He looked at his watch. He was to meet Mary at half past eleven.

'Where are you off to? Liverpool?'

'Liverpool,' said Willie cheerfully, 'So long, little sister.'

For which reason he missed the flurry that went round the ball-room at the news that Miss Hope had fainted and been taken to her room, so that he announcement of the engagement was postponed.

As a matter of fact, Miss Hope was lying on her hed upstairs, perfectly conscious and crying her eyes out.

Farm Relief

We must improve the staple and quality of our cotton if we want more money for it.

You say you can't afford to plant your whole acreage with pedigreed seed. Then, here's the way to start. Plant a seed block this year with the finest pedigreed cottonseed you can buy—say, a tenth of your acreage. Keep that foundation block in good shape. Keep rogue plants cleared out. That seed block will give you enough high grade, pedigreed cotton seed to plant your entire acreage next year. If every farmer in the Southwest would plant a pedigreed seed block this year and use those seed to plant next year, we could stamp out scrub cotton, low quality, low price cotton in this section within three years, and add tons of millions of dollars to our incomes.

There is no reason why every farmer in the Southwest can't plant one of these seed blocks this year. For the benefit of the farmer who doesn't have the cash to buy good seed for a seed block, the Texas Certified Cottonoeed Breeders Association has worked out a plan whereby every farmer in Texas can trade in his gin-run, scrub seed and get Texas Certified Cottonseed in return. And he won'thave to put out any cash to do it. Mr. Stufflebeme, manager of the Breeders Association, will tell you the details in just a minute. I believe this is one of the greatest opportunities ever offered to Southwestern farmers. It means that they can start on this cotton improvement program this year.

I believe it is the duty of every citizen of the Southwest to help the cotton improvement program. I know that in every community there is a need for one man—a leader—to take hold of this proposition and see that farmers in his community benefit by it. It will be up to him to tell farmers they can trade their gin-run seed for State Certified Cotton Seed. He will have to help them get their seed together, he will have to help them ship their seed. He may be a ginner, a banker, the county agent, a cotton buyer or a merchant. Such a leader would work willingly to bring great manufacturing plants to the Southwest. Here is his opportunity to improve the output of our own manufacturing plants—our cotton growing factories—and thereby add millions to our yearly income.

Yours very truly,
GEO. T. GRAVES.

Hard Times Mean Nothing To Hen

The following quotation from the Osborne Company, Newark, N. J., is so good that I am passing it along:

'Did you ever stop to think that hard times mean nothing to a hen? She just keeps on digging worms and laying eggs, regardless of what is said about conditions. If the ground is hard, she scratches harder. If it's dry, she digs deeper. If she strikes a rock she works around it. But always she digs up worms and turns them into hardshelled profits as well as tender broilers. Did you ever see a pessimistic hen? Did you ever know of one starving to death waiting for worms to dig themselves to the surface? Did you ever hear one cackle because times were hard? Not on your life. She saves her breath for digging and her cackles for eggs.'

STANDARD MILK

Ordinance Enacted by City Council At Tuesday Night Session Here.

The city council at its meeting on Tuesday night enacted the state Standard Milk Ordinance which will be in effect for Cameron on and after its legal publication which will be in the next week's issue of the Cameron Herald, named as the official organ of the city for the ensuing year.

The ordinance will provide standard grading of milk for the public supply. The ordinance is a lengthy document and could not be published this week but will appear in full next week.

Resourceful Sarah

The story is told of the immortal Sarah Bernhardt that once in London she took a cab back to the hotel. After a time it occurred to her they were not making much progress, and on questioning the driver was informed that they were lost and he could go no further. She left the cab, walked a minute or two, until she saw a fire engine returning from a fire. Without a moment's hesitation she hailed it and persuaded the fireman in charge to take her on, arriving at her hotel perched on the engine.

Color of Canaries

The original canary, whether serin or true wild canary, in its native haunt was much different in color from its modern pure-bred descendant. The back of the wild bird is, in general, gray, tinged with olive-green, especially on the rump, with dark shaft streaks on the feathers. Underneath it is yellowish, streaked on sides and flanks with dusky. Wild canaries from the Canary islands, the Azores and Madeira differ from the Continental serins in being slightly grayer with less of yellowish green in plumage above.

Great Writers of Past Had Fondness for Cats

Byron was fond of cats; in his establishment at Ravenna he had five of them, writes Helen M. Winslow in "Concerning Cats." Daniel Maclise's famous portrait of Harriot Martineau represents that estimable woman sitting in front of a fireplace and turning her face to receive the caress of her pet cat crawling to a resting place upon her mistress' shoulder.

Baudelaire, it is said, never could pass a cat in the street without stopping to stroke and fondle it. "Many a time," said Champfleury, "when he and I have been walking together, have we stopped to look at a cat curled up luxuriously in a pile of fresh white linen, reveling in the cleanliness of the newly ironed fabrics."

Professor Huxley's notorious fondness for cats was a fad which he shared with Paul de Koch, the novelist, who, at one time, kept as many as 30 cats in the house. Many descriptions of them are to be found scattered through his novels. His chief favorite, Fromentin, lived 11 years with him.

Pierre Loti has written a charming and most touching history of two of his cats—Moumette Blanche and Moumette Chinoise—which all true cat lovers should make a point of reading.

Science Offers Weapon for Survival of Man

Science will help man to survive beyond the fate of many extinct species that have been conquered by their environment. The most powerful method yet devised, says Dr. Roscoe R. Spencer writing in Hygeia Magazine, is in the weapon of science.

Man is confronted with the problem of adapting himself successfully to his environment before the environment overpowers him, says Doctor Spencer. Research alone will enable man to discover the laws of nature so that he may adapt himself, and in science lies the heart and soul of research.

While the average person has only the vaguest ideas concerning the workings of scientific men, science is not at all to be left to the highly gifted few, Doctor Spencer continues. The average person is capable of accomplishing much by the scientific method of trial and error in research. Doctor Spencer invites his readers to bring the scientific methods into their everyday life and to benefit by its use.

Cold Cream Long Popular

Don't let this jar your cold cream, girls. But, "believe it or not," that indispensable cosmetic of present-day femininity has been keeping the wrinkles from milady's face for more than 2,000 years. So says Charles Whitebread, curator of the division of medicine at the National museum in Washington. What is more, he says it is the second oldest of all pharmaceutical preparations. And do you girls know who "invented" your old standby? To quote Curator Whitebread "the fragrant unguent has changed very little from the original formula for unguentum refrigerans ceratum, invented and prescribed by the Roman physician Galen, sometimes known as the 'father of pharmacy.' "—Pathfinder Magazine.

"Pieces of Eight"

This coin is a Spanish piece that circulated freely in this country in Colonial and Revolutionary times and the coin to which we owe the adoption of the dollar as the unit of our currency. It had become the custom in many places, especially in the South, to price goods, keep accounts and make collections in "Spanish milled dollars," the name under which the old "pieces of eight"—eight reals—were known in the Colonies. When we came to have a currency of our own we took the piece of eight, or Spanish dollar, as our unit and divided it into a hundred cents.

The End Alone Counts

John Bright once declared of his party, "We shall win in the long run." And they did. It is the win in the long run that is life's best win.

The runner, who wins the first lap is a good runner, but he who stays on and keeps at his running and wins the last is the best runner. The boxer who wins the fight is he who wins in the long run.

A chapter in a life may be tragic, but if the end is happy, what does it matter? It is the end that counts.—London Chronicle.

Cure for Convulsions

The following was taken from a recent report by a nurse in one of the cities of New York state:

"While taking a history of a prenatal mother I asked the mother what was the cause of a previous child's death; she replied that it died of convulsions. I then inquired if she knew what to do for convulsions. She answered immediately, saying 'stand with the baby in your left arm with back to the stove, remove baby's shirt and throw it over your shoulder into the fire.' "—Health News.

Too Big to Ask

Robert insisted that his younger brother be sent on an errand to a neighbor's.

"Why don't you want to go?" inquired his mother.

"I went to the grocery for her. She said she was going to make cookies today and Junior will get 'em, if he goes. I'm too big to ask."

Modern Home Superior to That of the Past

Scientific investigation has punctured the often accepted statement that old-time houses were necessarily better built than modern ones. Just because the timbers were bigger and hand-hewn does not mean that they were more scientifically put together.

Impartial comparison of the work of old builders with that of their modern successors, made by Donald G. Tarpley for the Woman's Home Companion, gave the following interesting results:

"Old houses did not have insulation in the outside walls. Flashing was not so good as it is now. Plastering was inferior. Metal lath was unknown. Chimneys did not have metal throats and frequently several flues ran together. Modern chimneys have terra-cotta flue lining, which is not only smooth but which in one-inch thickness is equivalent to four inches of brick.

"Floors were usually only one thickness, whereas now we use two layers of board with sound-deadening felt between. The wide floor boards which were so appreciated in old houses were practical in their day because they were laid in houses which were not thoroughly heated. But in modern homes with steam heat wide boards are more likely to swell and open up. They have to be put down by a different process—veneered and screwed in addition to being side-nailed."

Steel Pen Quickly Put Quill Out of Business

The first steel pens were not nibs as we know them now. They had long steel barrels which fitted on to wooden holders. Fine mapping [illegible] and a few other special types are still made in the same way.

The real origin of the steel pen is not known, but it is of record that 100 years ago James Perry and Josiah Mason sent the first consignment of these pens from Birmingham to London.

For centuries prior to that time the quill had held the field undisputed. The first steel pens were made some time before 1830, though for a long while the public would have nothing to do with them. As far back as 1748 steel pens came from Aix-la-Chapelle, and a few were certainly made in Birmingham in 1780.

During Victorian times the pen product of Birmingham amounted to 4,000,000 gross per year, and by 1892 it had grown to 18,000,000, but the fountain pen has been the means of cutting this latter figure to about one-third.

Houses of the Poor in Korea

Houses belonging to the common people of Korea are for the most part small, low and thatched, and have few rooms, the walls being made of stone and clay and usually only one story high. High buildings were forbidden by the old laws of the country, but now that no such restrictions exist there are many two-story houses, some of them brick, especially in urban districts. A unique part of the Korean house is its heating arrangement. The floor is made of flagstones plastered over with clay and covered with thick oiled paper. Underneath, forming what would be the joists, run a series of horizontal flues. Fire is made outside the room and the hot smoke-laden air circulates through the flues and escapes at the opposite end. Thus the floor is thoroughly heated.

Seventh Grade News

EDITED BY STUDENTS

'William Tell and the Apple' by Friedrich Schiller was read by the 7C section. Then we chose one character from the play and gave a description of him. The following were the best ones:

William Tell

You asked me what sort of man I thought Tell was? He was unafraid, free, intelligent, and modest. Although he was the best archer in the whole province, he never went about looking for shotting matches, as I am afraid some of us would have done. Although he seemed to be reluctant to shoot when the apple was placed on his son's head, he was not afraid, but merely a showing of paternal love for his son. Tell loved his son and placed complete confidence in him, else he could not have taken the shot, for though he was, in a measure, fearful to take the shot because he loved him, he observed that the boy would be in much greater danger if he did not take the shot. So he let fly, placing his confidence entirely in his own markesmanship and in his son's ability to stand still. He was confident in himself, but less so than in his son.

How did he look? Oh, he was probably a tall, well-formed man with hair just beginning to turn gray; dressed in a long tunic, long stockings, cloth shoes, and a soft hat with a feather in it. He bore a quiver of arrows on one shoulder. Although Tell was not a very handsome man he was upright and sincere, and thus he won the confidence of his neighbors.

—Margaret Fisher

Gessler

Gessler was a greedy ruler who was Viceroy of Switzerland while it was being oppressed by the Austrians. He considered himself much higher and much better than the Swiss. He always made some silly rule and tried to aggravate the poor Swiss. Then he would trap them and send them away to prison.

Gessler was a big fat man. He had a dark, stubby beard which he was very proud of. He wore very fine and expensive clothes. A big and fine horse was always provided for him. His face always had a sneer on it.

—Leonard Blaylock.

Gessler

Gessler was a cruel ruler of Switzerland. The story shows that he had no respect for other's rights and that he didn't even care about their happiness. He was a selfish man and Switzerland would have been much better off without Gessler for a ruler.

At the time the story happened Gessler had a falcon with him so he must have been hunting. Of course important people like Gessler had a different dress for different occasions. I imagine that Gessler wore a knightly hunting suit with light armor. He may have had a scarlet plume on his helmet and have been mounted on a prancing horse. A hunting horn, perhaps, was over his shoulder and he must have looked befitting to the high office he held.

After reading the story 'Acres of Diamonds,' the following compositions were written:

What Is The Use of Trying That?

There was once a poor man who had no work to do. He lived in Hingham, Massachusetts. He stayed around the house until his wife got tired of him not doing anything and told him to get out and work. He went out and sat down on the shore of the bay and while sitting there began to whittle a soaked shingle into a wooden chain. When he went home ,his children quarreled over it, and he whittled another one to keep peace. After a time a neighbor came in and asked him why he did not whittle and sell toys. He said he did not know what to make. The neighbor replied, 'Ask your children.'

He thought to himself, 'What is the use of trying that?'

Next morning he asked his little girl what she wanted for a toy. She named a few things. He soon began to make them. In a short time his toys were known all over the world.

Today he is worth hundred millions of dollars, through applying himself where he was needed.

—Mary Louise Vaughn.

What Is The Use Of Trying That

Once there was a poor man who lived in Hingham, Massachusets. He was out of work so he always obeyed his wife. One day his wife told him to get out and work but he only went down to the sea shore and whittled a soaked shingle into a wooden chain. That night when he went home the cildren had a fuss over which one could get it. One of his neighbors asked him why he did not whittle toys and sell them. The man had no money to buy good wood so he had to use firewood. Though he had to use this hard old wood, he made good toys and soon he was known all over the world. Now the old man is worth hundreds of millions of dollars. He had no capital to start out with but he made his capital with a penknife

VISITS OLD HOME AFTER ABSENCE OF MANY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Barber of Bay City paid a short visit to Cameron Monday while enroute to his home from Waco where they visited their daughter who is a student in Baylor University. Mr. Barber is the son of the late I. N. Barber who for several years was District Clerk here. Mr. Barber had not lived here since 1900. He remarked about the many wonderful improvements that had been made. He asked about many of the old time settlers and recalled them and their business at the time he left here which he said was when he was a boy. They were accompanied by his sister who will be remembered by many as Miss Nora Barber and lived here with her parents during their life time. Mr. Barber is now Tax Collector of the county he lives in.

ALLEN FRERICKS KILLED BY PASSING AUTO

BURLINGTON LAD DIES SUNDAY FOLLOWING ACCIDENT THERE

Burlington, Texas, April 7—Allen, a seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frerichs, was struck by an automobile driven by a negro last Sunday about the noon hour and was immediately rushed to the Cameron Hospital but was dead when they reached Cameron.

The negro stopped and offered assistance. It seemed that it was unavoidable. The accident happened in front of the Arthur Hensel home, one-half mile north of Burlington. The Frerichs family were going to the Arthur Hensel home for dinner when they stopped the car to open a gate. The little boy got out of the car and started across the road to open the gate when the negro drove by the car striking the boy.

Burlington and vicinity deeply sympathize with Mr. Frerichs and family. Funeral services were begun at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frerichs at two o'clock Monday afternoon and the procession, a mile in length, went to the Lutheran church where part of the services were held, being concluded at the Lutheran cemetery. Rev. R. Kalkbrenner conducted the services.

John Robinson and family of Mexia were recent guests of A. S. Robinson and family. A. S. Robinson has returned from Temple where he recently underwent an operation. His friends will be glad to know his condition is improving.

Bud Chappell of Rosebud is employed at the A. S. Robinson blacksmith shop and garage during Mr. Robinson's illness.

Jack Fatheree and wife of Porter, Texas and Mrs. Mary Jane Bell of Humble, Mrs. Gordon Davis and children of Baileyville were recent guests in the H. A. Fatheree home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Westbrook of Waco were Burlington visitors last Sunday.

Several Ben Arnold folks were in attendance at church here last Sunday. We are always glad to have visitors.

The Easter spell was pretty cool here but no serious damage resulted.

Marshall Weems and family of Cameron were guests of Jake Dodson and family last Sunday.

4-H Club Girls Are Busy With Program For Improvements

The 4-H Club girls in their Home Improvement work will be required to do three things: Make plans for their yards; Get the ground in spic and span condition; and Each girl will plant shrubs or vines using a trellis as a screen to out-buildings or west windows.

The agent met with the Gause girls Friday from 12 to 2:30 in giving the above demonstration. Thirteen girls were present and enjoyed a picnic, afterward spent some time in getting materials for this work such as sumach, youpan, carol berries, dog wood, gum eleastic and Spanish mulberry. These girls were given intruction in the planting of these shrubs to be used around their homes.

The Sharp and San Gabriel 4-H Club girls had their regular meeting last week with 26 present with their respective pesidents presiding: Edith Modesette and Ruby Simank. Roll call was answered with reports on gardening, poultry and dairying. This was followed by the agent, Miss Bartholomew, demonstrating which was the preparation of salads and their service. A list of foods required was given to the girls, to be eaten each day, which was one raw fruit (or raw vegetable) each day, one other fruit which may be cooked or raw, one leafy vegetable, one starchy vegetable, potato or young corn, one other vegetable, carrots, turnips, onions, beets, cushaw, pumpkins, okra, fresh or cream peas, radishes or cucumbers.

STUDENTS WIN

BUSINESS WOMEN IN SESSION TUESDAY

GAME AND DANCE PARTY AT COUNTRY CLUB DURING THE MONTH

In the absence of the president, Miss Rose Rischar, Mrs. Katie Robbins presided over the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club Tuesday evening at the Texas-Louisiana Power Company's office.

During the business session of the club Miss Frankie Slaughter was voted to become a member of the club. They also voted to give a game and dance party some time this month at the Country Club. Bridge and 42 games will be from 8 to 10, and dancing will be from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Miss Lillian Atkinson read an interesting paper on 'Indian Villages and Indian Relics Found in Milam County.' A letter from the club in Waco was read by Mrs. Emma Moore inviting the club to attend a banquet and special meeting in Waco at the Hilton Hotel, May 18 and 19th. Also a letter from the Marlin club was read inviting them to attend the District meeting to be held in Marlin, April 25 and 26th. The club is planning for as many as can to be present at that time.

The club was favored with the presence of J. C. Tucker, Dr. G. E. Sutton and W. J. Watson of Cameron, accompanied by Dr. E. LeMay of the Health Department of Austin who read a paper on 'Healthy Foods.'

Dr. V. M. Ehliers, State Sanitary Engineer of Austin was then introduced and gave a splendid talk on sanitation as a 'Means of Preventing the Spread of Diseases.'

Mrs. Ruth Mayfield had charge of the program for the evening. Miss Weaver of Houston was a guest of the club.

The Business and Professional Women's Club members, assited by a number of other ladies met the Waco Boosters train Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 with handsome pansy nosegays and pinned them on each booster as they alighted from the train.

The pansies were grown by Mrs. R. D. Brown who grows them in quantities of the finest class and greater varieties. Mrs. Brown very beautifully fashienod them into bouquets heself and presented them to the B. & P. W. Club for which they wish to thank her for her untiring gift of much beauty. Mrs. Brown's flower yard is one of the most admired in the city.

FELIX BALLEW PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE LATE J. S. TERRY

He was a staunch believer in truth and honor, and practiced his belief, in fact he possessed the qualities that made for good citizenship. He would not dafraud or speak evil of his fellow man. For fifty years he was a true friend to the writer and not a word of discord ever passed but true friendship to the last. He was not a member of any church but he loved the church and helped to support the church in many ways. He was not deceitful but plain and upright. He was a well rounded-out good citizen in every way. We need more men like J. S. Terry.

A Friend.

METHODIST CHURCH

'What Are You Planting In Your Garden?' will be the subject of the sermon next Sunday at 7:45 p. m. At 11 a. m. after a brief sermon, we shall administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Sunday school begins at 9:45 a. m. and the Epworth Leagues at 6:45 p. m. At the close of the Sunday school hour we shall receive several lads into the church. Last Sunday was a great day at our church and we trust to have another equally s great next Sunday. The puwblic is cordially invited to attend any and all services.

C. A. LEHMBERG, Pastor.

was made in North Elm cemetery.

Deceased was born July 2, 1870 and is survived by his wife and family. Coleman and Eplen, funeral directors, had charge of the remains.

Many friends will be glad to hear that Mrs. Chas. Pollard who has been a patient in a hospital in Temple, is much improved and will soon be home.

Seventh Grade News

EDITED BY STUDENTS

'William Tell and the Apple' by Friedrich Schiller was read by the 7C section. Then we chose one character from the play and gave a description of him. The following were the best ones:

William Tell

You asked me what sort of man I thought Tell was? He was unafraid, free, intelligent, and modest. Although he was the best archer in the whole province, he never went about looking for shotting matches, as I am afraid some of us would have done. Although he seemed to be reluctant to shoot when the apple was placed on his son's head, he was not afraid, but merely a showing of paternal love for his son. Tell loved his son and placed complete confidence in him, else he could not have taken the shot, for though he was, in a measure, fearful to take the shot because he loved him, he observed that the boy would be in much greater danger if he did not take the shot. So he let fly, placing his confidence entirely in his own marksmanship and in his son's ability to stand still. He was confident in himself, but less so than in his son.

How did he look? Oh, he was probably a tall, well-formed man with hair just beginning to turn gray; dressed in a long tunic, long stockings, cloth shoes, and a soft hat with a feather in it. He bore a quiver of arrows on one shoulder. Although Tell was not a very handsome man he was upright and sincere, and thus he won the confidence of his neighbors.

Gessler

Gessler was a greedy ruler who was Viceroy of Switzerland while it was being oppressed by the Austrians. He considered himself much higher and much better than the Swiss. He always made some silly rule and tried to aggravate the poor Swiss. Then he would trap them and send them away to prison.

Gessler was a big fat man. He had a dark, stubby beard which he was very proud of. He wore very fine and expensive clothes. A big and fine horse was always provided for him. His face always had a sneer on it.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Giles McDermott entertained very beautifully April 1 from 3:30 to 5:30 in honor of the ninth birthday of her son, Lyle McDermott.

Guests were drawn mostly from the second grade, section Y of the Ada Henderson school, friends of the honored guest.

Outdoor games were enjoyed on the lawn and later a beautiful white birthday cake that was artistically decorted with green border, marsh mallow bunnies with pink cepe paper ears, topped with nine burning candles, was cut and enjoyed. Later the guests enjoyed an Easter Egg hunt, This was a very joyous occasion for those in attendance.

ATTEND PRESBYTERIAL

At the meeting of Central Texas Presbyterial, comprised of twenty-three churches, which met in Temple last week, the following attended from Cameron: Mrs. John Watson, who is treasurer for the Presbyterial; Mrs. George Cay, president of the local Auxiliary; Mesdames Ben Atkinson and Ernest Eggert, delegates, Mesdames C. W. Lawrence, Mary McLane Lawrence, James Watson Graham Gillis, R. D. Brown and Mary Henderson.

EASTER CANTATA

Music lovers of Cameron and vacinity enjoyed a rare treat Sunday evening when the combined choirs of the different churches of town rendered the Easter Cantata 'Life Eternal' at the First Methodist church at 7:15, after a short and impressive sermon by Rev. N. D. Timmerman, pastor of the First Baptist church L. C. Gayle, director of music at the Baptist church was leader and Mrs. Loula Clinton, director of choir at the Methodist church, as organist. The large audience was delighted and gave rapt attention. The best talent in town was assembled and each person taking part showed splendid training. All those in attendance are speaking of the spendid rendition of this very difficult cantata.

HOMEMAKERS CLASS

Members of the Homemakers Class of the Baptist Sunday school met on Monday afternoon at the Baptist church annex and held a business session after which there was a social hour. The class is now the proud possessor of a lovely class room which is in the Baptist parsonage. They are now busy fixing up their room, and are planning on having interesting programs each Sunday morning. This is a lively class and will have many pleasant times in the future.

EASTER EGG HUNT

Pupils of the primary department of the Methodist Sunday school, under the leadership of Mrs. John Olson superintendent of that depratment, and teachers in her department, enjoyed a delightful Easter egg hunt Saturday afternoon. They met at the church and went in a body to the City Park where they found many eggs, supposedly left by little Mrs. Bunny.

D. A. R. MEETING

The Sarah McCalla Chapter, Dau- hters of the American Revolution et Thursday afternoon in the audirium of Ada Henderson school for special program, devoted to appreiation and conservation of Texas ild flowers. The room was made tractive with bowls and baskets of dian Paint Brush, Dogwood and luebonnets. Regent, Mrs. R. H. cIntosh presided over the meeting ith usual formal proceedings.

A salute was given to the flag hich held its place of honor. Roll ll was answered with 'Interesting acts About Texas Wild Flowers.' rs. T. S. Henderson read a beautil poem on the Bluebonnet, our tate flower. Mrs. McIntosh gave e of her own original and beautil poems in tribute to theme and ogram, as follows:

ow can I tell, when each in its place
Calls for my love and with upturned face,
thed in the dews of heaven,
Answers each mood of my hungry heart?
ien Spanish-daggers lift their bayonets to sky,
And stand as sentinals to the desert west,
soul responds and stands on guard
Shielding within me what is best.
lighter vein, I stand where daisies grow,
And stooping, pluck a flower to find,
u know, 'He loves me; he loves me not.'
And thus I grow a child again
Sweetpeas, bonneted in various hues,
Like vain little maidens in Easter pews;
The crocus gowned in chorister white,
The dandelion, growing gray o'er night;
The iris to the purple born—
Each little flower with color and thorn
Enthralls my heart and I cannot tell
Which I love the best.

This was followed by a moving picture of Texas wild flowers, secured through the efforts of Mrs. G. T. Moore, chairman of Better Films Committee, and to be used later for benefit of school children. Miss Ethel Jenkins added greatly to the pleasure of the picture by her informational description of each flower as it was shown.

This unusual and interesting program was concluded with a most excellent paper on 'The Flora of Texas' by Mrs. B. J. Baskin which was very much enjoyed and appreciated.

Guests of the chapter were members of the History Club and a number of others. One out of town member was present, Mrs. Vernon McIntyre of Marfa.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Members of the Methodist Missionary Society met Monday afternoon at the church for a business session. In the absence of the president, Mrs. M. M. Johnson, Mrs. H. N. Tate presided. Mrs. R. H. Johnson led the devotional. All officers made their reguar monthly report. Next Monday will be Missionary Study led by Mrs W. O. Triggs.

ATTENDING DISTRICT MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

Mrs. W. O. Triggs, District Secretary of the Annual Conference of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church, accompanied by Mrs. M. M. Johnson, left Monday for Nacogdoches where they will attend Annual Missionary Conference that is being held there this week. Mrs Johnson went as a delegate from Cameron.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY

An interesting meeting of the Presbyterian Auxiliary was held on Monday afternoon at the church.

Rev. Acrey led the devotional; Mrs. Henry Sapp rendered an organ prelude. The pesident, Mrs. Geo. Cay, gave a splendid report on the work of the Auxiliary. The report of the treasurer by Mrs. John Watson was very gratifying and showed fine work for the past year.

Mrs. John Watson and Mrs. Thad Epperson rendered a beautiful vocal duet. Mrs. W. T. Hefley gave a voice number and Mrs. G. E. Sutton sang a solo. Talks were made by those who attended the Presbyterial at Temple last week.

The pastor installed the new officers which was very impressive.

DELPHIAN CHAPTER

The Delphian Chapter met at the Methodist church Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, Mrs. T. A. Fisher, president, presiding, who led the lesson in the absence of Mrs. Jim Coleman.

The lesson was Restoration Drama. Mrs. Fisher gave 'Relation of Drama to Political and Social Life;' Miss Winnie Henderson, 'General Character of Late Stuart Drama;' Mrs. C. Freeman, 'Later Stuart Tragedy;' Mrs. Niley Smith, 'Congreve;' and Mrs. Joe Denson, 'Love for Love.' The chapter will meet next time April 21, with Mrs. Jim Coleman as leader

TUESDAY BRIDGE

The Tuesday Bridge Club met with Mrs. Claude Triggs this week in her attractive home in East Cameron.

Beautiful spring flowers in bowls lent charm to the rooms where three tables of club members gathered for a number of enjoyable games. At the close of the games Mrs. Clifton Jenness had made high score for the afternoon.

CHRISTIAN AID

The Aid Society of the Christian church held an interesting meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ed Lovick, with Mrs. Martin Kilian as leader, assisted by Mesdames Guy locomb, Raymond Beard, Robert Young and Mrs. Harris. They will meet next Monday at the church at three o'clock.

Mrs. Jefferies of Austin, mother of Mrs. Kilian, was a guest at the meeting.

BAPTIT W. M. S.

All circles of the Baptist W. M. S. met at the church Monday afternoon for a business session, Mrs. McLeod, president, presiding. Monthly standing committees made their report and a discussion was held in regard to the annual egg shipment to the Buckner Orphans Home in Dallas and will ship out an allotment of eggs next week.

There were 16 members in attendance. All circles will hold meetings in private homes next Monday at 3 p. m., and all will have Bible study. Lily Mae Hundley Circle will meet with Mrs. T. S. Henderson. Lottie Moon Circle will have Mrs. Grady Cooper for hostess and Mrs. M. G. Cox will have members of the Eunice Taylor Glass Circle with her.

SUNRISE PRAYER

The Sunrise Prayer Meeting held at the City Park Easter morning was well attended, although it was chilly and cold; meeting as the sun rose over the horizon, giving promise of the beautiful day that followed. All churches were filled at the eleven o'cock services and splendid sermons were given by the different pastors.

The Weather

Week Ending April 8, 1931

Mrs. E. A. Knipp of Houston was an Easter guest of her mother, Mrs A. J. Raymond, and Mrs. Katie Robbins. Mrs. Knipp formerly lived in Cameron and her visits are much enjoyed by many friends.

CHEVROLET

Production For March 79,603 Cars and Trucks; New Car Total Large.

March production of the Chevrolet Motor Company was 79,603 cars and trucks and brings the number of new 1931 models built up to April 1 to in excess of 326,000 units, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager announced today.

March output was larger than in any month since May, 1930 and final figures for March exceed preliminary reports by moe than 4000 units.

The March performance represents a gain of better than 18 per cent over February production of 67,000 units, and represents an increase of 1000 units over the numbe originally scheduler for March production.

While production of the company is being conservatively increased in line with the upturn of the sales chart, registration figures continue to show that Chevrolet is maintaining leadership as the fastest-selling automobile. In December Chevrolet led all other makes of passenger cars in domestic registrations by 2000 units, in January by 4000 units, and the 43 states already reported for February show maintenance of that leadership by a comfortable margin.

Stops Headache in Five Minutes

A Wonderful Formula Ends Aches and Pains Almost Like Magic.
Something Better and Safer

Thousands of men and women are now stopping throbbing, sick, dizzy, splitting headaches, as well as the excruciating pains of rheumatism, neuritis, toothache, etc., with a marvelous new formula that is said to be far superior to anything heretofore used.

It contains no aspirin, acetanilid, etc., and is absolutely safe and harmless. This remarkable formula, called A-VOL, is being prescribed by thousands of doctors, dentists and welfare nurses because of the quick, efficient way it relieves all types of aches and pains without depressing the heart, or causing any other harmful effects. A-Vol quickly stops the most severe pain, leaving the patient refreshed and feeling fine. Especially effective in women's period pains.

To quickly prove to yourself that this is truly a remarkable formula, just step into your nearest drug store and get a package of A-VOL for a few cents. Take a couple of tablets right there. If your pain is not gone in five minutes, the clerk will return your money.

DO YOU NEED

PLANTING SEED?

If so, here is your chance to get some of the best Seed that is possible to secure at all time low prices.

I still have a few of the Seed on hand from the carload that I received from H. Conrads, San Marcos, Texas, the originator, grower and breeder of Qualla Pedigreed Cotton Seed. They are some of the best-looking seed that you have ever seen. They are a very high germination test, and are all treated with Ceresan, so that you will be sure to get a good stand from them.

See me at once before the Seed I have on hand are exhausted. When they are gone, I probably won't be able to get any more. Mr. Conrad tells me that his supply is very limited, and being taken up rapidly. I guarantee these Seed to be everything they are claimed to be, and that they will give you 100 per cent satisfaction.

Automobile Owners, Operators, Dealers, Notaries Public

The State Motor Vehicle Registration Laws have always required that the Seller of a second-hand Motor Vehicle must register the Motor Vehicle for the current year before offering same for sale. That the Seller must deliver to the Purchaser, a receipt for the current year license fee together with a Bill of Sale and Application for Transfer in Duplicate at the time of sale or trade. That the Purchaser must file one copy of the Bill of Sale and Application for Transfer with the County and State Tax Collector at once.

Heretofore there was no penalty provided for failure to comply with the above provisions on the part of Seller or Purchaser.

I beg to call attention of all our people to the provisions of a new law known as Senate Bill No. 40 passed by the present legislature and effective March 24th, 1931, which provides drastic penalties for failure to comply with these laws relating to Sale and Transfer of Second-hand Motor Vehicles in this State.

"Whoever, acting for himself or another, sells, trades or otherwise transfers any second-hand or used vehicle without delivering to the transferee (Purchaser) at the time of the delivery of the vehicle the license receipt issued therefor for the current year and a bill of sale in Triplicate as herein required shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding Two Hundred ($200.00) Dollars."

"The Tax Collector and the Highway Department shall refer to the appropriate prosecuting attorneys, any false statements found in any bill of sale or any false certificates executed by any Notary Public or other officer."

"Any person who shall transfer a motor vehicle and execute the same wholly, or partly in blank, leaving out any information that is required to be given, and can be given, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined in any sum not exceeding Two Hundred ($200.00) Dollars.

"One copy of the Bill of Sale is to be retained by transferee as evidence of title, two copies are to be filed with the County Tax Collector of the County in which the transferee resides as an application for transfer of license, together with a transfer fee of Twenty-five cents; provided, that if said transferee (Purchaser) does not file said application within ten days and before the expiration of twenty days, a penalty or fee of Two ($2.50) Dollars and Fifty Cents, shall be paid, and at the expiration of twenty days a penalty or fee of Five ($5.00) Dollars shall be paid upon the filing of such application. The Tax Collector and his bondsmen shall be liable for the penalties herein provided in the event such penalties are not collected."

WEST SIDE SQUARE ADJUSTERS CAMERON, TEXAS

The Cameron Herald

ESTABLISHED A. D. 1878

VOL. 52 CAMERON, MILAM COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1931 TEN PAGES TODAY No. 51

DRASTIC LAW ENACTED ON USED CAR SALES

Under the new law motor vehicle owners in Milam County will save approximately $1000 per year in Transfer Fees. This provided the law is complied with in making sales, trades and exchanges of motor vehicles. The Transfer fee under the old law was $1.00 and the fee provided under the new law is 25c. If the law is not followed the penalties provided are very heavy. The essential provisions provided under the new law are set out in another section ofthis paper.

It is very important that our people acquaint themselves with the provisions of the new tansfer law. As Tax Collector of our county trying to serve all citizens fairly, efficiently, courteously and at the same time assist them in observing the laws as provided by the law-making body of our government I realize the confusion which will prevail until our people thoroughly acquaint themselves with this law. I respectfully request and urge everyone to give special notice and consideration to this law to the end that all our neighbors and friends may come to understand same.

The reason given for enactment of this bill by the legislature at this time is, the fact that many automobiles have been stolen and the failure to file for transfer timely, results in confusion, and the inability in many instances, to trace the thieves and determine ownership; ambiguity of the present law; and the excessiveness of the filing fee under the present law.

HEALTH OFFICERS HERE FOR DAYS PROGRAM OF WORK

Message of Better Living Brought to City On Tuesday

Better public health through the application of more sanitary methods in handling the milk supply and the water supply, together with suggestions for extending the benefits of public sanitation, were stressed in the program here Tuesday in which Dr. J. C. Anderson, state health officer and others took part.

The occasion of the visit was Texas Health and Milk Week. The significant result of the visit was the enactment on Tuesday night by the City Council of the Standard Milk Ordinance, under consideration here for several years and sponsored by Dr. G. E. Sutton, city sanitary officer.

This ordinance, a lengthy law governing the public supply of milk, will be pubished in the next week's issue of The Herald.

Those in the party of health authorities who visited Cameron were Dr. J. C. Anderson, V. M. Ehlers, state sanitary engineer, and Dr. Ernest LeMay of the state health department.

As guests of the Lions Club on Tuesday the officials brought a message of better health to that organization. In the evening they met with the Business and Professional Women. During the afternoon they were guests of the Parent Teachers Association in talks to the student bodies of the schools in Cameron.

Mr. Ehlers formerly lived in Cameron and is well known here.

Dairymen coopeating offered prizes for the best posters. The winners will be announced and published next week.

COTTON CO-OPERATIVE MEETING HELD HERE

DELEGATES NAMED FOR MEETING AT COOLIDGE ON APRIL 11

The Texas Cotton Cooperative Association of Milam County met in the District Court Room of the Court House at Cameron, Saturday afternoon, April 6, 1931.

The following officers were elected for the purpose of this meeting: J. D. Baskin, chairman; H. E. Fuchs, vice chairman and Roy Law, secretary.

Purposes of the meeting were explained by Chairman Baskin who requested further discussion of the association business by members present. Good talks were delivered by T. S. Henderson of Cameron, H. B McAnnulty of Buckholts and H. L. Yager of Maysfield.

Election of delegates to the district meeting of the association to be held in Coolidge, Texas, Saturday, April 11, was called for the the chairman declared nominations in order. Mr. H. L. Atkinson of Maysfield nominated the following list of delegates all of whom were unaminously elected. T. S. Henderson of Cameron; H. L. Yager of Maysfield; G. A. McDermott of Marlow; E. G. Simms of Rockdale, Judd G. Davis of Sharp; H. H. Camp of San Gabriel; John Stasa of Curry; W. B. Smith of Gause; P. L. Bergum of Ben Arnold and H. E. Fuchs of Buckholts.

Waymie Mae Worcester Injured By Automobile

Waymie Mae Worcester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buck Worcester was painfully injured at noon Thursday when struck by a passing automobile. She was on her way to school.

An ambulance from the Coleman-Eplen firm responded to the call and she was taken to the hospital. Her legs were badly cut and bruised and a cut was made on the face by the car fender. She was not fatally injured and will recover in a few days it was said.

MAN AND HIS DOG

Famed Tribute of Senator Vest to Jury Expresses Love of Dog for His Master.

Below is a 'Tribute To The Dog,' which is a speech made by the late Senator Vest of Missouri in the trial of a man who had wantonly shot a dog belonging to a neighbor. Mr. Vest represented the plaintiff, who demanded $200 damages. As the result of this speech, the jury, after two minutes' deliberation, awarded the plaintiff $500.

'Gentlemen of the Jury: The best friend a man has in this world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name, may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may loose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it the most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend that a man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, and the one that never proves ungrateful or treacheous, is his dog.

'Gentlemen of the Jury, a man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground, where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer, he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounters with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert, he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is as constant in his love as the sun in its jouney through the heavens. If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies, and when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace, and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by his graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even unto death.'

Mrs. T. A. Howell has returned from a few days visit with her son and family in Waco.

Convention Hears Cameron Man In Inspiring Address

W. G. Gillis and T. A. Howell returned last Saturday from Mineral Wells where they attended on Friday and Saturday the Woodmen of the World Head Camp as representatives of Pecan Camp No. 237, the local Woodman Lodge.

They report an interesting and well attended meeting of Texas Woodmen. The session of the Head Camp were presided over by Head Consul, R. H McDill of Dallas.

The national organization was represented by its President, W. A. Fraser; its banker, Senator Morris Sheppard and its General Attorney, D. E. Bradshaw. These national officers made eloquent and instructive addresses, reviewing the growth and achievements of the order.

Judge Gillis was invited to address the convention. His address delivered in characteristic eloquence and forceful speech, was one of the big moments of the convention. Great enthusiasm prevailed as Judge Gillis concluded his address. The convention members rose to their feet and gave Judge Gillis a vote of thanks for the address and their appreciation was expressed in many ways for the inspiration of his remarks. It was one of those rare occasions in convention assemblies when words found their way to the hearts of the hundreds who listened with rapt attention to the Cameron speaker.

It was developed that the order now had over $105,000,000 invested in first class County and Municipal securities; that the interest on this investment was sufficient last year to pay 60 per cent of the death losses; that over $8,000,000 were invested in bonds for the reserve fund during the past year.

The report on the War Memorial Hospital at San Antonio owned and operated by the Woodmen excited much interest and comment. This institution is caring for an average of 150 men per day per year. It is endowed with a permanent fund of $2,000,000, the income from this fund being sufficient to support the institution. The hospital has its own herd of registered Jersey cattle from which it gets butter and milk of the finest quality for the patients. Flocks of chickens belonging to the hospital furnish an abundant supply of eggs and meat.

The order, numerically and financially, is in a most flourishing condition according to Messrs. Howell and Gillis.

Come to the meeting Tuesday night April 28 and hear our Consul Commander, W. G. Gillis, make his report and don't forget to boost the WOW.

T. A. HOWELL, Financial Sec.

First Day Out Nets Dog Bite; Bull Pup Doesn't Like Wagon

Chas. Nabours, newly appointed employee at the Federal building and in charge of the free parcel post delivery service, found that his first day out on April 1, netted many thrills, including a good dog bite.

A courageous bull pup owned by Wyatt Wolf did not like the looks of the wagon and took out his resentment on Charlie's ankle. 'No doubt the dog thought I was the dog catcher,' said Mr. Nabours. 'At any rate he made a terrible mistake. I was only delivering a package but the presence of that wagon was more than the dog could stand.'

Mr. Nabours finds the work very satisfactory and the people here greatly appreciate his being placed in charge of the work because of his uniform courtesy and many friends in Cameron. They trust he will be placed permanently in charge of the work.

MEETING AT CURRY SCHOOL

Next Sunday at 2:30 p. m. Rev. C. A. Lehmberg, will attend the Sunday school at Curry school and preach immediately after. The community is invited to attend.

Scarbrough Mayfield of Austin was an Easter guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mayfield.

Says Song Strengthens International Harmony

If only on American will hurry and write a song as characteristically Yankee as 'King's Horses' is characteristically British, there will be no need to worry about harmony between at least two nations of the world.

This is the conviction of Ben Bernit, famous orchestra leader, whose rendition of 'King's Horses,' both on the record and in person, has proved one of the hits of the Manhattan season—indeed, a 'natural,' as it is called on Broadway.

Bernie spent some time in London as an attraction of the Kit Kat Club and it is due to his knowledge of England, gained then, that he is able to make a typically English song intelligible and interesting to America The song, incidentally, is written in American fox trot tempo.

'What the world needs is fewer long-winded diplomatic notes and more exchange of the lively arts,' Bernie declares.

'People who are singing each other's songs, understanding each other's jokes and laughing when the other fellow pokes gentle fun have little to fear in the way of international disagreements.

'Nations, after all, are made up of individuals and therefore, when nations quarrel, it means simply that individuals in the mass have found themselves unable to agree.

'Yet why shouldn't they agree if they have common interests? Seems to me it is the patriotic duty of some American to send England as good a laugh song as 'King's Horses.' We have had nothing like it since Blanch Ring did 'Bells on My Fingers.

Postal Clerks Here Make Good Showing

Commended For Excellent Work By Chief Clerk Vawter of Fort Worth.

Of interest to patrons of the Cameron postoffice and their friends are the results of examinations held this week under the direction of F. B. Vawter of Fort Worth, chief clerk in the postal service there.

The examinations were held Wednesday April 7 with clerks, Albert Collins, Grady Cooper and Joe Matula taking the tests. In all six examinations were held, two in each phase of the work. There was one for dispatch and another for case and junction work in distributing mail

Mr. Collins made 100 in both examinations for case and junction work. Mr. Cooper made 100 in these examinations and Mr. Matula made 100 in the junction examinations and 99:70 in the case work.

Mr. Vawter complimented the local office on its efficiency in dispatching the mails, the comment being based on reports of the Railway Postal Clerks who handle the mails aboard the trains from this office.

The entire personnel of the Federal building in Cameron is a credit to Cameron and the results of this examination will be received with interest by the hundreds of satisfied patrons of this post office.

Motion For New Trial Overruled By Judge

Motion for a new trial in the case of H. D. Thompson convicted and given a 20 year sentence for murder, was overruled by Judge John Watson in district court this week.

Attorneys for defendant gave notice of appeal to the court of criminal appeals.

REV. J. T. SAILES DEAD AT HOUSTON HOME

FORMER PASTOR HERE DIES AT 91 YEARS OF AGE FRIDAY

Rev. J. T. Hailes, 91, Presbyterian minister for fifty years,and a former pastor of Cameron Presbyterian church, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs, Mamie Booth, 1756 Branard Street, Houston, at 4 p. m., Friday. He had been living with his daughter in Houston for the past 18 months.

Rev. Sailes was an evangelist with the American Sunday School Union and is said to have organized the first Sunday school in Northern Louisiana. He was born in Belfast, Ireland, January 17, 1840 and was a member of the Masonic Lodge.

Deceased is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Booth of Houston and Mrs. Robert Hill of Tyler, nine grandchildren and nine great grand children. The body was sent to Monroe, La., Saturday where services were held and laid to rest.

Mr. Sailes was pastor of the Presbyterian church here for about two years. He was very popular with all classes and his long and useful life will be remembered by many friends in Cameron.

COURT HOUSE YARD IS BEAUTY SPOT

"The Flowers With Their Color Are Aflame," Like Springtime in the Rockies.

To mention the many beautiful flower yards to be seen in Cameron now, would require too much detail. One of the show places is the flower yard that surrounds the Court House which is kept up and looked after by the County officials.

The East side is particularly attractive where roses, lilies, bluebonnets, petunias, larkspur and red poppies may be seen in full bloom. There is something in bloom there most all the year and the grassy lawn affords cool places where many of the old pioneer men gather to swap yarns of earlier days when either side of the yard were deep sand beds.

Cameron has indeed grown to be a city where flowers, genial hospitality and culture has won the name of 'Cameron, the Friendly City.'

WACO BUSINESS MEN

Cameron business men were hosts Wednesday afternoon to business men from Waco on their annual pilgrimage over the territoy.

Buiness women of Cameon pinned flowers on the visiting delegates and flags were waving from their staffs on order of the Commercial Club.

Members of the Lions Club joined in the welcome to the business men

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Garner left Tuesday for Waco where they are attending the School of Instruction of Order Eastern Star that is being held in that city this week.

Charlie Hicks Instantly Killed Saturday Night

Another World War veteran has answered to last roll call. Charlie Hicks, age 35 years, was instantly killed when he lost control of the car he was driving about eight miles this side of Brenham Saturday night. A man who was riding with him was not injured. Mr. Hicks was on his way to Cameron to visit his mother, Mrs. Lizzie Hicks, where his remains were taken.

Deceased was born November, 1895 near Rosebud and had lived in Milam county most of his life, moving to Brenham a short time ago.

Mr. Hicks was a member of the Ninetieth Division and saw oversea service. He was a man well liked and many friends will mourn his sudden death.

The funeral was held at Ben Arnold Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by Rev. N. D. Timmerman, pastor of the First Baptist church, Cameron. He was buried with military honors by the American Legion. Taps were sounded and a salute of guns over the flag draped casket. Interment was made in the Ben Arnold cemetery.

Deceased is survived by his widow, a small daughter, widowed mother and two sisters: Mrs. Mabel Hair of Cameron and Mrs. Ella Lawrence of Granger.

C. N. Green & Brothers, undertakers had charge of the remains after being brought to Cameron.

Legion Meets Tuesday Declines Official Aid To Road Bonds

Edwin Hardy Post No. 9 American Legion held a jubilee meeting on Tuesday night with a large attendance.

The men were celebrating the payment of the bonus, Commander Hoover is meeting with much success as commander and with his capable official aides in the post, the post is making much pogress.

T. S. Henderson appeared before the meeting to discuss the proposed road bond issue for the state. The post declined to take official action in the matter, holding it not in keeping with the policy of the post to deal with matters involving political issues.

Mr. Henderson also brought the proposed bond issue to the attention of the Commercial Club but no action was taken by that body.

The state senate's vote on Wednesday submitting the issue has brought the bond plan to the foreground again. It was a contested issue in the late campaign, espoused by Governor Sterling who defeated Mrs. Ferguson.

Leland Green, who is a student at S. M. U. spent Easter here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Green.

'Start Farm Relief Yourself'

Better Cotton Seed Makes Better Staple and Better Prices, a Real Need of Cotton Farmers.

If some big manufacturer was to announce that he was planning on building a string of factories thruout the Southwest and that these factories would add tens of millions of dollars to the Southwest's yearly income, that news would be received with rejoicing. Think of it—25—50—75 million dollars extra put into the pockets of people in the Southwest We'd all like that, Wouldn't we?

Now, here's something I want you to remember—We can add millions of dollars—tens of millions—to the yearly income of this great section, by ourselves, without the help of manufacturers or factories. We can do this if our farmers and eveyone inteested in the cotton industry in the Southwest will get behind a unified program of cotton staple and quality improvement. We can start this year and in two or three years add a hundred million dollars to the value of our cotton, money that will go to the farmer.

You know as well as I do how badly we need a cotton improvement program in the Southwest. This section has lost its world-wide reputation as producer of the world's finest cotton. We have let the staple and quality of our cotton decline year by year. We've been planting just any old seed, good and bad. Last year, 26 per cent of our crop in Texas was of less than seven-eights of an inch in staple. Our staple grows shorter year by year. Our fiber is not the strong, tough fibre that brought buyers to us from all over the world—it has grown weaker.

There is just one way to change this situation, and that is to plant the highest type foundation cotton seed available and replant from it from year to year. You must plant good seed if you want to raise good cotton. And you must raise good cotton if you want to sell it at at a premium price. You know yourself that a scrub dairy cow will not sell far as much as a pedigreed cow. Scrub cotton won't bring as high a price as fine quality cotton, either.

Gause

Magnificent pre-Easter weather has told us that a glorious Spring is here and here to stay. At no better time could come the great festival of new life and new hope.

Special programs in observance of Easter were featured Sunday. First, the beautiful study of the Resurrection was made in the Sunday schools. Preaching services were held at the Methodist church consisting of a short Easter program of songs and readings followed by an Easter sermon by pastor, Rev. Burke. The Epworth League gave an Easter program at the church hour in the evening.

A number of Easter Egg Hunts were staged during the day. Mrs L. S. Cunningham and Mrs. Glen Critchfield gave their Sunday school classes a little hunt immediately after Sunday school on Mrs. Cunningham's lawn. In the afternoon Mrs. D. W. Key, Mrs. George Kendell and Mrs. B. T. Godfrey gave the junior and intermediate B. Y. P. U. a hunt at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Kilpatrick. A hunt was staged for the Methodist Sunday school on the school campus.

Mrs. J. F. Cook entertained her pupils, the primary and first grade, at noon Friday with a little picnic lunch and later a little Easter Egg hunt.

Miss Edrie Wilson and pupils, the second and third grades, went to Sand Banks Friday afternoon and enjoyed an Easter Egg hunt and like through woods, up streams and playing in the sand.

A P. T. A. program was featured Friday night—not the dry, business type, but a real entertainment. The program was lengthy consisting of talks by Mrs. L. O. Bowling and Mrs. Ditto; readings by Cecil Cook and Gertrude Luce; dialogues by second, seventh and eighth grades; songs; and an introducing of pupils who placed at County Meet and the senior class.

Preparations and rehearsals for the senior class play, 'An old Fashioned Mother,' which will be staged Friday night, May 1, are being made.

The school trustee election was held very quietly Saturday. Those elected were George Bland, F. D. Fowler, L. G. Hafley and L. S. Cunningham. Only 26 votes were cast.

A party for the Junior Sunday school class was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Wilson Saturday night. Eighteen little folks were out to enjoy the evening in spite of the cold. All had a very nice time. Visitors were Mrs. Ben Cass and daughter, Edith, Mrs. Terry Moore, Mrs. A. Varner and Mrs. Charlie Butler, The refreshments consisted of hot chocolate, cakes and Easter candies.

The Sewing Club met with Mrs D. W. Key Wednesday afternoon and surprised Mrs. Cannon with a love shower consisting of a little bit of everything—eats, and dry goods. The ladies decided to call their little group 'The Sunshine Club.'

Friends were grieved to hear Friday morning of the sudden death of the husband of Mrs. McNett, formerly Miss Charlie B. Fowler, granddaughter of Mrs. A. R. J. Ealand. Mr. McNett was killed when he fell from the top of an oil derrick on which he had begun working on recently. Mrs. Ealand left Friday to join the bereaved in San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Gaston spent the week end here while enroute to their new home near Corpus Christi.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilson and two sons of San Antonio and Mrs. Frank Ivy and two daughters of San Marcos and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Blackman of Thrall visited mother, Mrs. Zoe Todd.

Miss Mary M. Thomas who is in school at C. I. A., Denton, spent the week end at her home here.

Mrs. Gladys Tidwell and daughter, Helen June of Austin visited parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Partridge and Mrs. Lizzie Tidwell Sunday.

We were glad to have Miss Sue Sanders back in school Monday after a month's absence because of her mother's falling and breaking both arms a month ago. Miss Sanders reported her mother slowly improving but suffering a great deal yet.

Mr. and Mrs. Brice McClellen and little daughter of Cameron visited relatives here Sunday.

Miss Blanche Rose left Monday evening to assume a job at College Station after having spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Vernon Roper.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fowler and son of Georgetown visited Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Fowler.

Mrs. J. A. Smith and two little daughters and Mrs. Dorothy Broussard, of Cameron visited Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Smith.

Bull Rains of Goosecreek is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rains.

Miss Helen Hauptfleisch, who is teaching at Wheelock and Miss Elsie Hauptfleisch who is teaching at Milano spent the week end at their home here.

FORD COMFORT

Every new Ford is equipped with four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers

ONE of the fine things about driving the new Ford is the way it takes you over the miles without strain or fatigue. No matter how long the trip, you know it will bring you safely, quickly, comfortably to the journey's end.

The seats are generously wide, deeply cushioned and carefully designed to conform to the curves of the body. Every new Ford has specially designed springs and four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. These work both ways — up and down. They absorb the force of road shocks and also provide a cushion against the rebound of the springs.

Other features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, extensive use of fine steel forgings, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, Rustless Steel and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.

In addition, you save many dollars because of the low first cost of the new Ford, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

CHAPTER TWO

They joined the long procession of donkey carts, motorcycles, and innumerable motor cars, all the way from little bath tub Austins to huge purring Hispanos, which choked the roads to Epsom Downs. All London was going to the Derby, the great event of the year when royalty and slum dwellers make holiday together. It was a long trip, for they had to creep at a foot pace, and from the moment they left Lord Leeland's door Willie never took his eyes from Dorothy's face. Susan, tucked in between them, might not have existed for all he was aware of her presence. She drove well, did Dorothy; she talked well, she looked amazingly well, and Willie felt a famiiar feeling coming on. Before ten minutes had passed he was cursing this arch-duke fiance with all the vocabulary his wide experiences had taught him--silently of course, but no less heartily on that account.

As soon as they had left the car at the race course, he turned to Susan and thrust bank notes into her hands.

'Just for luck, Sue,' he told her, 'you go and lay the bets. If I have anything to do with it, we'llcome a cropper. Horses with short heads have been the ruin of me nine times by actual count'

Susan shook her head warningly, but went as she was ordered. As soon as she had disappeared in the crowd, Willie took Dorothy's willing hand and whisked her off toward the side shows and carrousels which were filling the air witmh tinny music and the shouts of their respective barkers. He was going to squeeze every ounce of merriment out of the occasion. He was even more convinced that it was good to be back in England—and on Derby Day.

They rode the carrousels side by side, he on a giraffe, she on a huge and glistening white pig; and they sang uproariously as the barrel organ ground out its jiggly tunes. They rode the razzle-dazzle and the shoot the chutes, not once but several times and they threw balls at Aunt Sallies and darts at targets and quoits at pegs until their arms were loaded with prizes. They completely forgot about Susan until they got back to the luncheon basket they had picked up at a booth near the entrance and found her gloomily laying out its separate ingredients on a table cloth.

'You're a couple of mean brutes to leave me alone all this time,' she grumbled at them. 'I've been looking for you everywhere.'

'We've been keeping the coin of the realm in circulation, darling,' said Willie, 'It's the duty of the rich to spend money. And speaking of being rich, did you put our mutual shirt up on Laguna?'

'I did,' said Susan, 'at fifty to one. The bookmaker said it was a shame to take the money.'

'It's going to cut me to the heart to take his when it's all over,' said Willie, 'But I'll do it. I owe it to myself. Fifty times fifty—my lambs I'll be endowed with twenty-five hundred quid at that point in my history.'

Dorothy was looking round her in ecstacy at the spectacle of the wrong side of the race course which, being a proper young woman she had naturally never seen. Here was London having a day in the open with British thoroughness—consuming amazing luncheons out of paper bags, passing loud pleasantries from family group to family group, betting its shillings with far more zest than its social superiors were laying their hundreds of pounds. Far across the green infield was the looming grandstand filled with people that had money.

'Aren't they lovely people?' asked Willie in delight.

'They are,' he said, passing her a pair of binoculars. 'Have a look at the toffs across the way and see the contrast.'

She swept the grandstand with her glasses and centered them on the lower tier of boxes.

'There's father in the box,' she said, 'and Paul—and they look so bored, poor things.'

'Serves them right for being snobs, said Willie, reaching for the glasses, 'Is Paul the feller on the left?'

'That's right,' said Dorothy, 'He would be furious, wouldn't he, Sue?'

'Good looking,' Willie remarked without relish.

'Awfully,' said Dorothy.

Willie lowered the glasses.

'When we part tonight,' he said, 'I'm going to break a precedent and pop into the first church I come to.'

'And why?'

'To pray for your happiness,' said Willie, dashing away an imaginary tear. He almost meant it. He did not like the archduke Paul's looks; but he also told himself not to be a prejudiced ass. After all, a man had a right to be good looking and smooth even too smoth.

A roar from both sides announced that the race had started. Willie threw down his sandwich and got tremendously to his feet. Not till the first turn could he make much of the closely bunched field. And when he could make out something, it was not encouraging.

'My poor old feller's a long way behind,' he announced, and Susan nodded resignedly. The crowd was shouting for the favorite which was half a length in the lead.

'But he's holding his own—by Jove he's doing more than that—'Willie was dancing perilously among the luncheon dishes, leaving large footprints on the table cloth—'what a jockey that man is! He's fourth—he's fourth and ciming up—he's neck and neck with third—he's a grand old feller, God bless him. He's second—he's second—' Dorothy had jumped up beside him and was clutching him by the shoulder as he danced. 'He's going away! He's taking the favorite. Neck and neck.' He handed the glasses to Dorothy and knelt on the tablecloth to pray. 'I can't bear it,' he said, 'You tell me what the numbers are.'

Dorothy's hands were shaking, but she finally got the glasses focussed on the judges' stand. The crowd was not pleased. There was a growing murmur of consternation among them.

'Eleven—nine—' she began, but got no farther.

'He's won!' Willie howled, He's won, Laguna's won. Twenty five hundred quid, oh, my soul.' He grabbed both the girls by the arms and led them round and round in a wild war dance. 'Laguna's gone and gathered same May,' he sang, and first Dorothy and then Susan joined in lustily:

'Laguna's gone and gathered some
May,
'Laguna's gone and gathered some
May,
And we won't be home for mornings.'

'I must kiss somebody,' Willie shouted, 'Susan, my beloved, you're for it.'

He kissed her riotously.

'Five hundred apiece in the morning my darlings,' he said, 'Let this be a lesson to you. When in trouble, come to Willie. The long shot comes home. I'm a seventh son of a seventh son and the terror of the bookmakers.'

We'd better pack up the basket, said Susan practically.

But Willie hailed a shabby looking individual who was passing deep in gloom. He had evidently backed the favorite.

'Do something for me, old feller?' said Willie, 'Keep your eye on this basket and the food till I come to the Derby next year, eh?' He handed him a bank note from the remains of the hundred. 'Have a drink if you get bored—have two drinks.' He clutched Dorothy and Susan round the waist and an them off toward the car, still lustily singing 'Laguna's bone and gathered some May.' Tne man stared at the note, rubbed his eyes and spat on the ground.

'Fairly up the pole, he is,' he remarked, 'Bloomin' haristocrat.'

The jubilant party of three in Dorothy's little oadster did not notice when a huge shiny touring car drew in behind them as they joined the homeward procession. They were behaving much too riotously to notice anything. They kept up the song all the way to London, and Susan drove, while Willie and Dorothy put the wooden dolls they had won in the side shows through a series of jubilant antics which kept their neighbors on either side in constant fit of admiration.

But in the huge car behind their behavior did not meet with approval. It contained that eminent linoleum millionaire, Erward Hope, father of Miss Dorothy Hope, and the archduke Paul, whose engagement to Miss Hope was to be announced that evening at the Hope's ball. They noticed Doothy at about the same time, and looked at each other in blank amazement. Then their faces assumed the same expression of exasperated anger, and they did not look at one another again. Their eyes remained steadily fixed on the unconscious back of Dorothy's blonde head.

The Hope ball was lavish and expensive, as befitted the Hope wealth. People said obvious things tbout linoleum, but they came to the Hope house whenever invited, for the food and music were sure to be excellent. At about tn o'clock, the splendor of the accasion was added to by the arrival of The Honorable William Hale with his sister, The Honorable Susan Hale; and three minutes after that, The Honorable William Hale was earnestly dancing with Miss Dorothy Hope.

This fact was commented on by the Archduke Paul and Mr. Edward Hope who were standing together on the side lines.

'There she is with him,' said the Archduke savagely.

'My lecture didn't do any good at all,' said Mr. Hope, 'I knew it would not. Outrageous behavior—outrageous—and she seems to have no sense at all of what it was.'

'My word, you dance beautifully, Willie was saying at that moment.

'One has to dance well to dance with you,' said Dorothy sweetly.

Willie glanced at her in alarm.

'I say, am I so very bad?'

'Awful,' said Dorothy cheerfully, 'besides, Id much rather sit down for a moment and talk to you. Yes?'

'Perfect tact,' Willie agreed, and they left the dance floor, Dorothy hanging closely on his arm, a detail which the archduke and his prospective father in law did not miss.

'You know,' said Dorothy, when they were established in a quiet corner of the conservatory, 'they caught us.'

'Who are they?' asked Willie languidly.

'Paul and my father. They were right behind us all the way home. They are furious.'

'Can't blame them much,' said Willie. 'Are you reproaching me with leading you astray? I wish you would. I want to do some reproaching on my own account.'

'For what?'

'You might have waited to get engaged till I'd gone away again.'

,'Why?' Dorothy tried her best to look puzzled.

'Because we can't go to any more races. No more razzle-dazzle—no on the green. I say, it's thoughtless more Aunt Sally—no more dancing of you.'

Dorothy grinned at him mockingly.

'There's always Liverpool for a playmate,' she said, 'Does she like dancing on the green?'

'I've never asked her,' said Willie imperturbably, 'But I don't think she would.'

'Teach her then.'

'You can't teach people things like that,' he protested, 'It's a natural gift—like being double jointed.'

'I do adore things like that,' Dorothy relented a bit

'You do,' said Willie, 'you and I are both tramps, you know. I've found you out—and as for me, just ask my father.'

At this point Mr. Hope and the archduke decided that the best thing to do was for he archduke to hunt her down and take her back to her duties. But she was not to be found immediately, and the dangerous conversation went on.

'When are you going away again?'

'Well, if I can get the governor to stump up for a sheep ranch in New Zealand—'

'Sheep? Why sheep?'

'I don't sleep well,' said Willie owlishly, 'and I'll be able to count them jumping fences. I say—I wonder what sheep do when they can't sleep?'

But that problem in natural history was never settled. A long shadow fell across them and the archduke Paul's heavy voice remarked:

'Dorothy, People are looking for you everywhere. I must say you're behaving strangely for a hostess.'

Willie came to his feet as if he had been shot.

'I'm terribly sorry,' he babbled, 'It's entirely my fault. Iv'e always been badly bred, you know—you're perfectly right—'

'I wasn't talking to you,' said the archduke coldly. And Willie made a clumsy bow and went away. The archduke firmly took Dorothy in the other direction. Willie looked after them blankly.

'Hello, said a man's voice at his elbow, 'See her face? What's up?'

'Just a lover's tiff,' said a second voice, 'But if I thought she'd begun to see through that fortune-hunting tailors rummy, I'd drink her father's fizz till you had to cary me home.'

'No such luck,' said the fist voice, 'It's too late now.'

In the drawing room downstairs, Dorothy and the archduke were confronting each other, both of them in a blazing rage.

'You'll apologize to Mr. Hale, Paul,' said Dorothy between set teeth.

'That cad.' The archduke snorted in derision. 'I've had enough of him today.'

'How dare you call a man a cad you don't even know—'

'I'm saying what everyone says who knows him. And besides what sort of a man is it who behaves the way he has? He's made me look a fool twice today. That's enough.'

Dorothy laughed at him.

'It was I who took him into the conservatory.'

'So he could make love to you, I suppose? He has been making love to you, hasn't he?'

Dorothy's head went back and her eyes blazed directly into his.

'On the contrary,' she said evenly, 'He's one of the very few men I've ever met who didn't.' She began to fumble at her left hand. The archduke looked down at it in dumb amezement.

'Take this,' she told him, handing him a ring, 'You and I will never get along.'

The archduke saw he had gone too far, and began to plead. A vision of his debts rose sinister and grim before him.

'My dear,' he said gently, 'You're angry now. You'll think differently directly, you know. Don't do anything so stupid. Don't you know your father's going to announce the engagement in a few minutes?'

'If he does,' said Dorothy, 'you're going to look a fool for the third time today. You'd better stop him, Paul. That's the last bit of advice you'll ever get from me.' And she turned and left him standing in the middle of the room, his jaw dropped in amazement.

Willie and Susan sitting in the lounge, saw the archduke on his way to confer with Mr. Hope.

'The happy man doesn't look so happy, Sue,' said Willie.

'Something must have happened,' said Susan, laying a hand excitedly on his arm, 'I wish it would.' Do you know what it's about?'

'Well, I have a vague notion,' said Willie.

'You haven't been making love to her?'

'Of course not,' Willie was indignant, 'I never met the girl until this morning.'

'he likes you a lot,' said Susan thoughtfully, 'I wish you'd take her away from him.'

'Even if I wanted to, Susan darling—and if I could—which I can't—I wouldn't.'

'For one thing she's too nice—and for another, she's too rich,' he told her. 'Look here, I've got to run.' He looked at his watch. He was to meet Mary at half past eleven.

'Where are you off to? Liverpool?'

'Liverpool,' said Willie cheerfully, 'So long, little sister.'

For which reason he missed the flurry that went round the ball-room at the news that Miss Hope had fainted and been taken to her room, so that he announcement of the engagement was postponed.

As a matter of fact, Miss Hope was lying on her hed upstairs, perfectly conscious and crying her eyes out.

Farm Relief

We must improve the staple and quality of our cotton if we want more money for it.

You say you can't afford to plant your whole acreage with pedigreed seed. Then, here's the way to start. Plant a seed block this year with the finest pedigreed cottonseed you can buy—say, a tenth of your acreage. Keep that foundation block in good shape. Keep rogue plants cleared out. That seed block will give you enough high grade, pedigreed cotton seed to plant your entire acreage next year. If every farmer in the Southwest would plant a pedigreed seed block this year and use those seed to plant next year, we could stamp out scrub cotton, low quality, low price cotton in this section within three years, and add tons of millions of dollars to our incomes.

There is no reason why every farmer in the Southwest can't plant one of these seed blocks this year. For the benefit of the farmer who doesn't have the cash to buy good seed for a seed block, the Texas Certified Cottonoeed Breeders Association has worked out a plan whereby every farmer in Texas can trade in his gin-run, scrub seed and get Texas Certified Cottonseed in return. And he won'thave to put out any cash to do it. Mr. Stufflebeme, manager of the Breeders Association, will tell you the details in just a minute. I believe this is one of the greatest opportunities ever offered to Southwestern farmers. It means that they can start on this cotton improvement program this year.

I believe it is the duty of every citizen of the Southwest to help the cotton improvement program. I know that in every community there is a need for one man—a leader—to take hold of this proposition and see that farmers in his community benefit by it. It will be up to him to tell farmers they can trade their gin-run seed for State Certified Cotton Seed. He will have to help them get their seed together, he will have to help them ship their seed. He may be a ginner, a banker, the county agent, a cotton buyer or a merchant. Such a leader would work willingly to bring great manufacturing plants to the Southwest. Here is his opportunity to improve the output of our own manufacturing plants—our cotton growing factories—and thereby add millions to our yearly income.

Yours very truly,
GEO. T. GRAVES.

Hard Times Mean Nothing To Hen

The following quotation from the Osborne Company, Newark, N. J., is so good that I am passing it along:

'Did you ever stop to think that hard times mean nothing to a hen? She just keeps on digging worms and laying eggs, regardless of what is said about conditions. If the ground is hard, she scratches harder. If it's dry, she digs deeper. If she strikes a rock she works around it. But always she digs up worms and turns them into hardshelled profits as well as tender broilers. Did you ever see a pessimistic hen? Did you ever know of one starving to death waiting for worms to dig themselves to the surface? Did you ever hear one cackle because times were hard? Not on your life. She saves her breath for digging and her cackles for eggs.'

Ordinance Enacted by City Council At Tuesday Night Session Here.

The city council at its meeting on Tuesday night enacted the state Standard Milk Ordinance which will be in effect for Cameron on and after its legal publication which will be in the next week's issue of the Cameron Herald, named as the official organ of the city for the ensuing year.

The ordinance will provide standard grading of milk for the public supply. The ordinance is a lengthy document and could not be published this week but will appear in full next week.

Resourceful Sarah

The story is told of the immortal Sarah Bernhardt that once in London she took a cab back to the hotel. After a time it occurred to her they were not making much progress, and on questioning the driver was informed that they were lost and he could go no further. She left the cab, walked a minute or two, until she saw a fire engine returning from a fire. Without a moment's hesitation she hailed it and persuaded the fireman in charge to take her on, arriving at her hotel perched on the engine.

Color of Canaries

The original canary, whether serin or true wild canary, in its native haunt was much different in color from its modern pure-bred descendant. The back of the wild bird is, in general, gray, tinged with olive-green, especially on the rump, with dark shaft streaks on the feathers. Underneath it is yellowish, streaked on sides and flanks with dusky. Wild canaries from the Canary islands, the Azores and Madeira differ from the Continental serins in being slightly grayer with less of yellowish green in plumage above.

Great Writers of Past Had Fondness for Cats

Byron was fond of cats; in his establishment at Ravenna he had five of them, writes Helen M. Winslow in "Concerning Cats." Daniel Maclise's famous portrait of Harriot Martineau represents that estimable woman sitting in front of a fireplace and turning her face to receive the caress of her pet cat crawling to a resting place upon her mistress' shoulder.

Baudelaire, it is said, never could pass a cat in the street without stopping to stroke and fondle it. "Many a time," said Champfleury, "when he and I have been walking together, have we stopped to look at a cat curled up luxuriously in a pile of fresh white linen, reveling in the cleanliness of the newly ironed fabrics."

Professor Huxley's notorious fondness for cats was a fad which he shared with Paul de Koch, the novelist, who, at one time, kept as many as 30 cats in the house. Many descriptions of them are to be found scattered through his novels. His chief favorite, Fromentin, lived 11 years with him.

Pierre Loti has written a charming and most touching history of two of his cats—Moumette Blanche and Moumette Chinoise—which all true cat lovers should make a point of reading.

Science Offers Weapon for Survival of Man

Science will help man to survive beyond the fate of many extinct species that have been conquered by their environment. The most powerful method yet devised, says Dr. Roscoe R. Spencer writing in Hygeia Magazine, is in the weapon of science.

Man is confronted with the problem of adapting himself successfully to his environment before the environment overpowers him, says Doctor Spencer. Research alone will enable man to discover the laws of nature so that he may adapt himself, and in science lies the heart and soul of research.

While the average person has only the vaguest ideas concerning the workings of scientific men, science is not at all to be left to the highly gifted few, Doctor Spencer continues. The average person is capable of accomplishing much by the scientific method of trial and error in research. Doctor Spencer invites his readers to bring the scientific methods into their everyday life and to benefit by its use.

Cold Cream Long Popular

Don't let this jar your cold cream, girls. But, "believe it or not," that indispensable cosmetic of present-day femininity has been keeping the wrinkles from milady's face for more than 2,000 years. So says Charles Whitebread, curator of the division of medicine at the National museum in Washington. What is more, he says it is the second oldest of all pharmaceutical preparations. And do you girls know who "invented" your old standby? To quote Curator Whitebread "the fragrant unguent has changed very little from the original formula for unguentum refrigerans ceratum, invented and prescribed by the Roman physician Galen, sometimes known as the 'father of pharmacy.'"—Pathfinder Magazine.

"Pieces of Eight"

This coin is a Spanish piece that circulated freely in this country in Colonial and Revolutionary times and the coin to which we owe the adoption of the dollar as the unit of our currency. It had become the custom in many places, especially in the South, to price goods, keep accounts and make collections in "Spanish milled dollars," the name under which the old "pieces of eight"—eight reals—were known in the Colonies. When we came to have a currency of our own we took the piece of eight, or Spanish dollar, as our unit and divided it into a hundred cents.

The End Alone Counts

John Bright once declared of his party, "We shall win in the long run." And they did. It is the win in the long run that is life's best win.

The runner, who wins the first lap is a good runner, but he who stays on and keeps at his running and wins the last is the best runner. The boxer who wins the fight is he who wins in the long run.

A chapter in a life may be tragic, but if the end is happy, what does it matter? It is the end that counts.—London Chronicle.

Cure for Convulsions

The following was taken from a recent report by a nurse in one of the cities of New York state:

"While taking a history of a prenatal mother I asked the mother what was the cause of a previous child's death; she replied that it died of convulsions. I then inquired if she knew what to do for convulsions. She answered immediately, saying 'stand with the baby in your left arm with back to the stove, remove baby's shirt and throw it over your shoulder into the fire.'"—Health News.

Too Big to Ask

Robert insisted that his younger brother be sent on an errand to a neighbor's.

"Why don't you want to go?" inquired his mother.

"I went to the grocery for her. She said she was going to make cookies today and Junior will get 'em, if he goes. I'm too big to ask."

Modern Home Superior to That of the Past

Scientific investigation has punctured the often accepted statement that old-time houses were necessarily better built than modern ones. Just because the timbers were bigger and hand-hewn does not mean that they were more scientifically put together.

Impartial comparison of the work of old builders with that of their modern successors, made by Donald G. Tarpley for the Woman's Home Companion, gave the following interesting results:

"Old houses did not have insulation in the outside walls. Flashing was not so good as it is now. Plastering was inferior. Metal lath was unknown. Chimneys did not have metal throats and frequently several flues ran together. Modern chimneys have terra-cotta flue lining, which is not only smooth but which in one-inch thickness is equivalent to four inches of brick.

"Floors were usually only one thickness, whereas now we use two layers of board with sound-deadening felt between. The wide floor boards which were so appreciated in old houses were practical in their day because they were laid in houses which were not thoroughly heated. But in modern homes with steam heat wide boards are more likely to swell and open up. They have to be put down by a different process—veneered and screwed in addition to being side-nailed."

Steel Pen Quickly Put Quill Out of Business

The first steel pens were not nibs as we know them now. They had long steel barrels which fitted on to wooden holders. Fine mapping [illegible] and a few other special types are still made in the same way.

The real origin of the steel pen is not known, but it is of record that 100 years ago James Perry and Josiah Mason sent the first consignment of these pens from Birmingham to London.

For centuries prior to that time the quill had held the field undisputed. The first steel pens were made some time before 1830, though for a long while the public would have nothing to do with them. As far back as 1748 steel pens came from Aix-la-Chapelle, and a few were certainly made in Birmingham in 1780.

During Victorian times the pen product of Birmingham amounted to 4,000,000 gross per year, and by 189[illegible] it had grown to 13,000,000, but the fountain pen has been the means of cutting this latter figure to about one-third.

Houses of the Poor in Korea

Houses belonging to the common people of Korea are for the most part small, low and thatched, and have few rooms, the walls being made of stone and clay and usually only one story high. High buildings were forbidden by the old laws of the country, but now that no such restrictions exist there are many two-story houses, some of them brick, especially in urban districts. A unique part of the Korean house is its heating arrangement. The floor is made of flagstones plastered over with clay and covered with thick oiled paper. Underneath, forming what would be the joists, runs a series of horizontal flues. Fire is made outside the room and the hot smoke-laden air circulates through the flues and escapes at the opposite end. Thus the floor is thoroughly heated.

'William Tell and the Apple' by Friedrich Schiller was read by the 7C section. Then we chose one character from the play and gave a description of him. The following were the best ones:

William Tell

You asked me what sort of man I thought Tell was? He was unafraid, free, intelligent, and modest. Although he was the best archer in the whole province, he never went about looking for shotting matches, as I am afraid some of us would have done. Although he seemed to be reluctant to shoot when the apple was placed on his son's head, he was not afraid, but merely a showing of paternal love for his son. Tell loved his son and placed complete confidence in him, else he could not have taken the shot, for though he was, in a measure, fearful to take the shot because he loved him, he observed that the boy would be in much greater danger if he did not take the shot. So he let fly, placing his confidence entirely in his own markemanship and in his son's ability to stand still. He was confident in himself, but less so than in his son.

How did he look? Oh, he was probably a tall, well-formed man with hair just beginning to turn gray; dressed in a long tunic, long stockings, cloth shoes, and a soft hat with a feather in it. He bore a quiver of arrows on one shoulder. Although Tell was not a very handsome man he was upright and sincere, and thus he won the confidence of his neighbors.

—Margaret Fisher

Gessler

Gessler was a greedy ruler who was Viceroy of Switzerland while it was being oppressed by the Austrians. He considered himself much higher and much better than the Swiss. He always made some silly rule and tried to aggravate the poor Swiss. Then he would trap them and send them away to prison.

Gessler was a big fat man. He had a dark, stubby beard which he was very proud of. He wore very fine and expensive clothes. A big and fine horse was always provided for him. His face always had a sneer on it.

—Leonard Blaylock.

Gessler

Gessler was a cruel ruler of Switzerland. The story shows that he had no respect for other's rights and that he didn't even care about their happiness. He was a selfish man and Switzerland would have been much better off without Gessler for a ruler.

At the time the story happened Gessler had a falcon with him so he must have been hunting. Of course important people like Gessler had a different dress for different occasions. I imagine that Gessler wore a knightly hunting suit with light armor. He may have had a scarlet plume on his helmet and have been mounted on a prancing horse. A hunting horn, perhaps, was over his shoulder and he must have looked befitting to the high office he held.

After reading the story 'Acres of Diamonds,' the following compositions were written:

What Is The Use of Trying That?

There was once a poor man who had no work to do. He lived in Hingham, Massachusetts. He stayed around the house until his wife got tired of him not doing anything and told him to get out and work. He went out and sat down on the shore of the bay and while sitting there began to whittle a soaked shingle into a wooden chain. When he went home, his children quarreled over it, and he whittled another one to keep peace. After a time a neighbor came in and asked him why he did not whittle and sell toys. He said he did not know what to make. The neighbor replied, 'Ask your children.'

He thought to himself, 'What is the use of trying that?'

Next morning he asked his little girl what she wanted for a toy. She named a few things. He soon began to make them. In a short time his toys were known all over the world.

Today he is worth hundred millions of dollars, through applying himself where he was needed.

—Mary Louise Vaughn.

What Is The Use Of Trying That

Once there was a poor man who lived in Hingham, Massachusets. He was out of work so he always obeyed his wife. One day his wife told him to get out and work but he only went down to the sea shore and whittled a soaked shingle into a wooden chain. That night when he went home the cildren had a fuss over which one could get it. One of his neighbors asked him why he did not whittle toys and sell them. The man had no money to buy good wood so he had to use firewood. Though he had to use this hard old wood, he made good toys and soon he was known all over the world. Now the old man is worth hundreds of millions of dollars. He had no capital to start out with but he made his capital with a penknife

Foolishness

We wonder why:

Robert Phillips can play third base?
Esther Shulz is so fat?
Albert Kelly is so popular with the girls?
Robert Michalka is not timed?
Billy Garcia is absent so often?
Rebecca Graham can spell?
Trent Newton is so pretty?
Helen Hess stays so fat?
Imogene McLerran studies so hard?
Velma Reese is so sweet?
Joy Lantrip is a tom-boy?
Margaret Lesikar stutters?
Mary Louise Vaughn is so loud?
Max McClaren is so polite?
R. L. York likes poison oak?
Elridge Ross is lazy?
Ernest Walters isn't lazy?
Marcellus Dragoo reads so fast?
Roy Heath likes Robert Sloan.
Robert Sloan Ryan likes Roy?

VISITS OLD HOME AFTER ABSENCE OF MANY YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Barber of Bay City paid a short visit to Cameron Monday while enroute to his home from Waco where they visited their daughter who is a student in Baylor University. Mr. Barber is the son of the late I. N. Barber who for several years was District Clerk here. Mr. Barber had not lived here since 1900. He remarked about the many wonderful improvements that had been made. He asked about many of the old time settlers and recalled them and their business at the time he left here which he said was when he was a boy. They were accompanied by his sister who will be remembered by many as Miss Nora Barber and lived here with her parents during their life time. Mr. Barber is now Tax Collector of the county he lives in.

ALLEN FRERICKS KILLED BY PASSING AUTO

BURLINGTON LAD DIES SUNDAY FOLLOWING ACCIDENT THERE

Burlington, Texas, April 7—Allen, a seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frerichs, was struck by an automobile driven by a negro last Sunday about the noon hour and was immediately rushed to the Cameron Hospital but was dead when they reached Cameron.

The negro stopped and offered assistance. It seemed that it was unavoidable. The accident happened in front of the Arthur Hensel home, one-half mile north of Burlington. The Frerichs family were going to the Arthur Hensel home for dinner when they stopped the car to open a gate. The little boy got out of the car and started across the road to open the gate when the negro drove by the car striking the boy.

Burlington and vicinity deeply sympathize with Mr. Frerichs and family. Funeral services were begun at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frerichs at two o'clock Monday afternoon and the procession, a mile in length, went to the Lutheran church where part of the services were held, being concluded at the Lutheran cemetery. Rev. R. Kalkbrenner conducted the services.

John Robinson and family of Mexia were recent guests of A. S. Robinson and family. A. S. Robinson has returned from Temple where he recently underwent an operation. His friends will be glad to know his condition is improving.

Bud Chappell of Rosebud is employed at the A. S. Robinson blacksmith shop and garage during Mr. Robinson's illness.

Jack Fatheree and wife of Porter, Texas and Mrs. Mary Jane Bell of Humble, Mrs. Gordon Davis and children of Baileyville were recent guests in the H. A. Fatheree home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Westbrook of Waco were Burlington visitors last Sunday.

Several Ben Arnold folks were in attendance at church here last Sunday. We are always glad to have visitors.

The Easter spell was pretty cool here but no serious damage resulted.

Marshall Weems and family of Cameron were guests of Jake Dodson and family last Sunday.

4-H Club Girls Are Busy With Program For Improvements

The 4-H Club girls in their Home Improvement work will be required to do three things: Make plans for their yards; Get the ground in spic and span condition; and Each girl will plant shrubs or vines using a trellis as a screen to out-buildings or west windows.

The agent met with the Gause girls Friday from 12 to 2:30 in giving the above demonstration. Thirteen girls were present and enjoyed a picnic, afterward spent some time in getting materials for this work such as sumach, youpan, carol berries, dog wood, gum eleastic and Spanish mulberry. These girls were given intruction in the planting of these shrubs to be used around their homes.

The Sharp and San Gabriel 4-H Club girls had their regular meeting last week with 26 present with their respective pesidents presiding: Edith Modesette and Ruby Simank. Roll call was answered with reports on gardening, poultry and dairying. This was followed by the agent, Miss Bartholomew, demonstrating which was the preparation of salads and their service. A list of foods required was given to the girls, to be eaten each day, which was one raw fruit (or raw vegetable) each day, one other fruit which may be cooked or raw, one leafy vegetable, one starchy vegetable, potato or young corn, one other vegetable, carrots, turnips, onions, beets, cushaw, pumpkins, okra, fresh or cream peas, radishes or cucumbers.

STUDENTS WIN

In the elimination held recently in Yoe high school, Misses Henriem Hefley and Louise Owen were winners in the Sophomore class and Giles Avriett and Roy Baskin for the Freshmen. These students will represent Yoe high in the Latin Contest in the State Meet to be held in Belton Saturday. Their instructor, Miss Masters will accompany them to Belton.

BUSINESS WOMEN IN SESSION TUESDAY

GAME AND DANCE PARTY AT COUNTRY CLUB DURING THE MONTH

In the absence of the president, Miss Rose Rischar, Mrs. Katie Robbins presided over the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club Tuesday evening at the Texas-Louisiana Power Company's office.

During the business session of the club Miss Frankie Slaughter was voted to become a member of the club. They also voted to give a game and dance party some time this month at the Country Club. Bridge and 42 games will be from 8 to 10, and dancing will be from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Miss Lillian Atkinson read an interesting paper on 'Indian Villages and Indian Relics Found in Milam County.' A letter from the club in Waco was read by Mrs. Emma Moore inviting the club to attend a banquet and special meeting in Waco at the Hilton Hotel, May 18 and 19th. Also a letter from the Marlin club was read inviting them to attend the District meeting to be held in Marlin, April 25 and 26th. The club is planning for as many as can to be present at that time.

The club was favored with the presence of J. C. Tucker, Dr. G. E. Sutton and W. J. Watson of Cameron, accompanied by Dr. E. LeMay of the Health Department of Austin who read a paper on 'Healthy Foods.'

Dr. V. M. Ehliers, State Sanitary Engineer of Austin was then introduced and gave a splendid talk on sanitation as a 'Means of Preventing the Spread of Diseases.'

Mrs. Ruth Mayfield had charge of the program for the evening. Miss Weaver of Houston was a guest of the club.

The Business and Professional Women's Club members, assited by a number of other ladies met the Waco Boosters train Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 with handsome pansy nosegays and pinned them on each booster as they alighted from the train.

The pansies were grown by Mrs. R. D. Brown who grows them in quantities of the finest class and greater varieties. Mrs. Brown very beautifully fashienod them into bouquets heself and presented them to the B. & P. W. Club for which they wish to thank her for her untiring gift of much beauty. Mrs. Brown's flower yard is one of the most admired in the city.

FELIX BALLEW PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE LATE J. S. TERRY

He was a staunch believer in truth and honor, and practiced his belief, in fact he possessed the qualities that made for good citizenship. He would not dafraud or speak evil of his fellow man. For fifty years he was a true friend to the writer and not a word of discord ever passed but true friendship to the last. He was not a member of any church but he loved the church and helped to support the church in many ways. He was not deceitful but plain and upright. He was a well rounded-out good citizen in every way. We need more men like J. S. Terry.

A Friend.

METHODIST CHURCH

'What Are You Planting In Your Garden?' will be the subject of the sermon next Sunday at 7:45 p. m. At 11 a. m. after a brief sermon, we shall administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Sunday school begins at 9:45 a. m. and the Epworth Leagues at 6:45 p. m. At the close of the Sunday school hour we shall receive several lads into the church. Last Sunday was a great day at our church and we trust to have another equally s great next Sunday. The puwblic is cordially invited to attend any and all services.

C. A. LEHMBERG, Pastor.

was made in North Elm cemetery.

Deceased was born July 2, 1870 and is survived by his wife and family. Coleman and Eplen, funeral directors, had charge of the remains.

Many friends will be glad to hear that Mrs. Chas. Pollard who has been a patient in a hospital in Temple, is much improved and will soon be home.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Giles McDermott entertained very beautifully April 1 from 3:30 to 5:30 in honor of the ninth birthday of her son, Lyle McDermott.

Guests were drawn mostly from the second grade, section Y of the Ada Henderson school, friends of the honored guest.

Outdoor games were enjoyed on the lawn and later a beautiful white birthday cake that was artistically decorted with green border, marsh mallow bunnies with pink cepe paper ears, topped with nine burning candles, was cut and enjoyed. Later the guests enjoyed an Easter Egg hunt. This was a very joyous occasion for those in attendance.

ATTEND PRESBYTERIAL

At the meeting of Central Texas Presbyterial, comprised of twenty-three churches, which met in Temple last week, the following attended from Cameron: Mrs. John Watson, who is treasurer for the Presbyterial; Mrs. George Cay, president of the local Auxiliary; Mesdames Ben Atkinson and Ernest Eggert, delegates, Mesdames C. W. Lawrence, Mary McLane Lawrence, James Watson Graham Gillis, R. D. Brown and Mary Henderson.

EASTER CANTATA

Music lovers of Cameron and vacinity enjoyed a rare treat Sunday evening when the combined choirs of the different churches of town rendered the Easter Cantata 'Life Eternal' at the First Methodist church at 7:15, after a short and impressive sermon by Rev. N. D. Timmerman, pastor of the First Baptist church L. C. Gayle, director of music at the Baptist church was leader and Mrs. Loula Clinton, director of choir at the Methodist church, as organist. The large audience was delighted and gave rapt attention. The best talent in town was assembled and each person taking part showed splendid training. All those in attendance are speaking of the spendid rendition of this very difficult cantata.

HOMEMAKERS CLASS

Members of the Homemakers Class of the Baptist Sunday school met on Monday afternoon at the Baptist church annex and held a business session after which there was a social hour. The class is now the proud possessor of a lovely class room which is in the Baptist parsonage. They are now busy fixing up their room, and are planning on having interesting programs each Sunday morning. This is a lively class and will have many pleasant times in the future.

EASTER EGG HUNT

Pupils of the primary department of the Methodist Sunday school, under the leadership of Mrs. John Olson superintendent of that depratment, and teachers in her department, enjoyed a delightful Easter egg hunt Saturday afternoon. They met at the church and went in a body to the City Park where they found many eggs, supposedly left by little Mrs. Bunny.

D. A. R. MEETING

The Sarah McCalla Chapter, Dau-hters of the American Revolution et Thursday afternoon in the audi-rium of Ada Henderson school for special program, devoted to appre-lation and conservation of Texas ild flowers. The room was made tractive with bowls and baskets of dian Paint Brush, Dogwood and luebonnets. Regent, Mrs R. H. cIntosh presided over the meeting ith usual formal proceedings.

A salute was given to the flag hich held its place of honor. Roll ll was answered with 'Interesting acts About Texas Wild Flowers.' rs. T. S. Henderson read a beauti-l poem on the Bluebonnet, our tate flower. Mrs. McIntosh gave e of her own original and beauti-l poems in tribute to theme and ogram, as follows:

ow can I tell, when each in its place
Calls for my love and with upturned face,
thed in the dews of heaven,
Answers each mood of my hungry heart?
en Spanish-daggers lift their bayonets to sky,
And stand as sentinals to the desert west,
soul responds and stands on guard
Shielding within me what is best.
lighter vein, I stand where daisies grow,
And stooping, pluck a flower to find,
u know, 'He loves me; he loves me not.'
And thus I grow a child again
Sweetpeas, bonneted in various hues,
Like vain little maidens in Easter pews;
The crocus gowned in chorister white,
The dandelion, growing gray o'er night;
The iris to the purple born—
Each little flower with color and thorn
Enthralls my heart and I cannot tell
Which I love the best.

This was followed by a moving picture of Texas wild flowers, secured through the efforts of Mrs. G. T. Moore, chairman of Better Films Committee, and to be used later for benefit of school children. Miss Ethel Jenkins added greatly to the pleasure of the picture by her informational description of each flower as it was shown.

This unusual and interesting program was concluded with a most excellent paper on 'The Flora of Texas' by Mrs. B. J. Baskin which was very much enjoyed and appreciated.

Guests of the chapter were members of the History Club and a number of others. One out of town member was present, Mrs. Vernon McIntyre of Marfa.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Members of the Methodist Missionary Society met Monday afternoon at the church for a business session. In the absence of the president, Mrs M. M. Johnson, Mrs. H. N. Tate presided. Mrs. R. H. Johnson led the devotional. All officers made their reguar monthly report. Next Monday will be Missionary Study led by Mrs W. O. Triggs.

ATTENDING DISTRICT MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

Mrs. W. O. Triggs, District Secretary of the Annual Conference of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church, accompanied by Mrs. M. M. Johnson, left Monday for Nacogdoches where they will attend Annual Missionary Conference that is being held there this week. Mrs Johnson went as a delegate from Cameron.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY

An interesting meeting of the Presbyterian Auxiliary was held on Monday afternoon at the church.

Rev. Acrey led the devotional; Mrs. Henry Sapp rendered an organ prelude. The pesident, Mrs. Geo. Cay, gave a splendid report on the work of the Auxiliary. The report of the treasurer by Mrs. John Watson was very gratifying and showed fine work for the past year.

Mrs. John Watson and Mrs. Thad Epperson rendered a beautiful vocal duet. Mrs. W. T. Hefley gave a voice number and Mrs. G. E. Sutton sang a solo. Talks were made by those who attended the Presbyterial at Temple last week.

The pastor installed the new officers which was very impressive.

DELPHIAN CHAPTER

The Delphian Chapter met at the Methodist church Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, Mrs. T. A. Fisher, president, presiding, who led the lesson in the absence of Mrs. Jim Coleman.

The lesson was Restoration Drama. Mrs. Fisher gave 'Relation of Drama to Political and Social Life;' Miss Winnie Henderson, 'General Character of Late Stuart Drama;' Mrs. C. Freeman, 'Later Stuart Tragedy;' Mrs. Niley Smith, 'Congreve;' and Mrs. Joe Denson, 'Love for Love.' The chapter will meet next time April 21, with Mrs. Jim Coleman as leader while you wait anxiously for a letter. Think now:—wouldn't a long distance telephone call ease your mind? It's quick. It's simple. It's cheap.

TUESDAY BRIDGE

The Tuesday Bridge Club met with Mrs. Claude Triggs this week in her attractive home in East Cameron.

Beautiful spring flowers in bowls lent charm to the rooms where three tables of club members gathered for a number of enjoyable games. At the close of the games Mrs. Clifton Jenness had made high score for the afternoon.

CHRISTIAN AID

The Aid Society of the Christian church held an interesting meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ed Lovick, with Mrs. Martin Kilian as leader, assisted by Mesdames Guy locomb, Raymond Beard, Robert Young and Mrs. Harris. They will meet next Monday at the church at three o'clock.

Mrs. Jefferies of Austin, mother of Mrs. Kilian, was a guest at the meeting.

BAPTIT W. M. S.

All circles of the Baptist W. M. S. met at the church Monday afternoon for a business session, Mrs. McLeod, president, presiding. Monthly standing committees made their report and a discussion was held in regard to the annual egg shipment to the Buckner Orphans Home in Dallas and will ship out an allotment of eggs next week.

There were 16 members in attendance. All circles will hold meetings in private homes next Monday at 3 p. m., and all will have Bible study.

Lily Mae Hundley Circle will meet with Mrs. T. S. Henderson. Lottie Moon Circle will have Mrs. Grady Cooper for hostess and Mrs. M. G. Cox will have members of the Eunice Taylor Glass Circle with her.

SUNRISE PRAYER

The Sunrise Prayer Meeting held at the City Park Easter morning was well attended, although it was chilly and cold; meeting as the sun rose over the horizon, giving promise of the beautiful day that followed. All churches were filled at the eleven o'cock services and splendid sermons were given by the different pastors.

CHEVROLET

Production For March 79,603 Cars and Trucks; New Car Total Large.

March production of the Chevrolet Motor Company was 79,603 cars and trucks and brings the number of new 1931 models built up to April 1 to in excess of 326,000 units, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager announced today.

March output was larger than in any month since May, 1930 and final figures for March exceed preliminary reports by moe than 4000 units.

The March performance represents a gain of better than 18 per cent over February production of 67,000 units, and represents an increase of 1000 units over the numbe originally scheduler for March production.

While production of the company is being conservatively increased in line with the upturn of the sales chart, registration figures continue to show that Chevrolet is maintaining leadership as the fastest-selling automobile. In December Chevrolet led all other makes of passenger cars in domestic registrations by 2000 units, in January by 4000 units, and the 43 states already reported for February show maintenance of that leadership by a comfortable margin.

H. A. Fatheree and family received the sad news recently of the death of a sister-in-law of Mr. Fatheree. She was Mrs. Mollie Sarrells of Houston,

Stops Headache in Five Minutes

A Wonderful Formula Ends Aches and Pains Almost Like Magic. Something Better and Safer

Thousands of men and women are now stopping throbbing, sick, dizzy, splitting headaches, as well as the excruciating pains of rheumatism, neuritis, toothache, etc., with a marvelous new formula that is said to be far superior to anything heretofore used.

It contains no aspirin, acetanilid, etc., and is absolutely safe and harmless. This remarkable formula, called A-VOL, is being prescribed by thousands of doctors, dentists and welfare nurses because of the quick, efficient way it relieves all types of aches and pains without depressing the heart, or causing any other harmful effects. A-Vol quickly stops the most severe pain, leaving the patient refreshed and feeling fine. Especially effective in women's period pains.

To quickly prove to yourself that this is truly a remarkable formula, just step into your nearest drug store and get a package of A-VOL for a few cents. Take a couple of tablets right there. If your pain is not gone in five minutes, the clerk will return your money.

DO YOU NEED
PLANTING SEED?

If so, here is your chance to get some of the best Seed that is possible to secure at all time low prices.

I still have a few of the Seed on hand from the carload that I received from H. Conrads, San Marcos, Texas, the originator, grower and breeder of Qualla Pedigreed Cotton Seed. They are some of the best-looking seed that you have ever seen. They are a very high germination test, and are all treated with Ceresan, so that you will be sure to get a good stand from them.

See me at once before the Seed I have on hand are exhausted. When they are gone, I probably won't be able to get any more. Mr. Conrad tells me that his supply is very limited, and being taken up rapidly. I guarantee these Seed to be everything they are claimed to be, and that they will give you 100 per cent satisfaction.

NOTICE

Automobile Owners, Operators, Dealers, Notaries Public

The State Motor Vehicle Registration Laws have always required that the Seller of a second-hand Motor Vehicle must register the Motor Vehicle for the current year before offering same for sale. That the Seller must deliver to the Purchaser, a receipt for the current year license fee together with a Bill of Sale and Application for Transfer in Duplicate at the time of sale or trade. That the Purchaser must file one copy of the Bill of Sale and Application for Transfer with the County and State Tax Collector at once.

Heretofore there was no penalty provided for failure to comply with the above provisions on the part of Seller or Purchaser.

I beg to call attention of all our people to the provisions of a new law known as Senate Bill No. 40 passed by the present legislature and effective March 24th, 1931, which provides drastic penalties for failure to comply with these laws relating to Sale and Transfer of Second-hand Motor Vehicles in this State.

"Whoever, acting for himself or another, sells, trades or otherwise transfers any second-hand or used vehicle without delivering to the transferee (Purchaser) at the time of the delivery of the vehicle the license receipt issued therefor for the current year and a bill of sale in Triplicate as herein required shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding Two Hundred ($200.00) Dollars."

"The Tax Collector and the Highway Department shall refer to the appropriate prosecuting attorneys, any false statements found in any bill of sale or any false certificates executed by any Notary Public or other officer."

"Any person who shall transfer a motor vehicle and execute the same wholly, or partly in blank, leaving out any information that is required to be given, and can be given, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined in any sum not exceeding Two Hundred ($200.00) Dollars.

"One copy of the Bill of Sale is to be retained by transferee as evidence of title, two copies are to be filed with the County Tax Collector of the County in which the transferee resides as an application for transfer of license, together with a transfer fee of Twenty-five cents; provided, that if said transferee (Purchaser) does not file said application within ten days and before the expiration of twenty days, a penalty or fee of Two ($2.50) Dollars and Fifty Cents, shall be paid, and at the expiration of twenty days a penalty or fee of Five ($5.00) Dollars shall be paid upon the filing of such application. The Tax Collector and his bondsmen shall be liable for the penalties herein provided in the event such penalties are not collected."
